ELIXIR FATALITIES AROUSE DEMAND FOR DRUG CONTROL

Stronger Legislation Is Urged as U.S. Body Cites
73 Persons Known To Have Died From Use of Dangerous Chemical.

SULFANILAMIDE HELD 'VALUABLE'

Citations Prepared Calling on Maker To Show
Why Cases Shouldn't Be Prosecuted by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP) The food and drug administration, declaring that 73 persons were known to have died as a result of taking the drug "elixir sulfanilamide," urged congress today to enact stronger drug control legislation.

The administration, responding to a request from senate and house for a report on the deaths, recommended that congress:

1. License control of new drugs to make sure that they will not be generally distributed until experimental and clinical tests have shown them to be safe for use.

2. Prohibit drugs dangerous to health when administered in accordance with the manufacturer's directions for use.

3. Require drug labels to bear appropriate directions for use and warning against probable misuse.

4. Prohibit secret remedies by requiring that labels disclose fully their composition.

The administration said that the entire amount of 240 gallons of the "elixir sulfanilamide" manufactured and sold by the S. E. Massengill Company of Bristol, Tenn., had been accounted for by government representatives working in co-operation with the manufacturer and druggists and physicians who participated in its distribution.

The administration said that besides the 73 deaths cited, 20 other persons who took the medicine died, but that it had not been established that the drug was exclusively responsible for these fatalities.

Describing sulfanilamide as a "valuable drug" and not responsible for the deaths, the report attributed the fatalities to diethylene glycol, which was used as a solvent in making the liquid "elixir."

Fatal Elixir. "The fatal elixir" was rushed onto the market without adequate test to determine whether or not diethylene glycol may be safely used as a solvent for sulfanilamide, despite previously published reports in scientific literature showing that diethylene glycol might be dangerous when taken internally," the report said.

"Citations are already in preparation for issuance to the manufacturer, calling on him to show cause why the cases should not be referred to the federal courts for criminal prosecution," the report stated, adding that the company had paid fines in 1934 and 1937 for alleged violations of the food and drug act.

The report also stated: "Records of the Postoffice Department show that in 1929 H. C. Watkins, the Massengill Company chemist, who made the 'elixir,' was distributing a medicine represented to reduce weight, to bring about 'perfect slenderness' and to cause the body to acquire 'a trim, youthful, athletic look.'"

"On October 30, 1929, the Watkins laboratories and others were cited by the solicitor of the Postoffice Department to show cause why a fraud order should not be issued. H. C. Watkins filed a stipulation with the department, agreeing that the sale of the product would be abandoned and not resumed at any future time."

BUS LINES STRIKE PEACE IS SOUGHT

Schedules in 16 States Are Partially Interrupted
by Drivers' 'Walkout'

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A union drivers' strike on eight Greyhound bus lines serving 16 states caused partial interruption of schedules today as a federal labor conciliator resumed peace conferences.

John J. Conner, Labor Department conciliator, met separately with representatives of Greyhound and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, named sole bargaining agency for drivers by the National Labor Relations Board.

"They are pretty well deadlocked," Conner said, "over brotherhood demands for a closed shop and a mileage wage rate increase. I am seeking an opening wedge. I don't know that I'll even attempt a joint meeting."

S. R. Harvey, assistant brotherhood president and lone negotiator for the strikers, claimed 1,000 drivers—"98 per cent of whom are members of our organization"—were affected by the midnight walkout. Greyhound representatives were not present.

Woman Fatally Burned By Flames in Home

Mrs. Florence Neville, about 60, of 897 Peachtree street, N. E., was fatally burned when her bed caught fire shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

E. O. Dyal, highway department employee, who boarded Mrs. Neville's home, said he and H. F. Nipper, his roommate, smothered the flames which burned the woman's face and shoulders. He said he was unable to explain how the bed caught fire.

Mrs. Neville was taken to Grady hospital for emergency treatment. She died at 6:25 o'clock last night. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condon. Dyal said he knew of no relatives.

Tide Rolls On, Beating Vandy, 9-7; Tech Frosh Down Bullpups, 20-12

Alabama's Crimson Tide had to call on the toe of Sandy Sanford, substitute end who kicked the field goal to win the game with Tulane two weeks ago, again yesterday to defeat Vanderbilt, 9 to 7, in Nashville, and remain in the ranks of the nation's undefeated and untied football teams.

In Atlanta, approximately 13,000 spectators saw the Tech freshmen defeat the Georgia freshmen, 20 to 12, in a game played at Grant field for the benefit of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

The game was featured by a 100-yard run by Rupert Blount, of the Georgia team, who intercepted a pass behind his goal line and traveled the length of the field for a touchdown.

The Alabama kick came in the fourth quarter of the game from the Vandy 23-yard line.

After Alabama had scored in the second quarter on a pass from Joe Kilgore to Warren to lead, 6 to 0, the Commodores drove from their 47-yard line, where Hausman plunged over and Joe Agee kicked the extra point to give Vandy a 7-to-6 lead.

Then in the fourth quarter, the field goal was kicked almost from a 45-degree angle. A crowd of 22,000 saw the classic.

In another traditional Southern conference game at Lexington, Ky., the Tennessee Volunteers defeated Kentucky, 13 to 0.

BEER TAX BOOST TERMED RUINOUS BY STATE DEALERS

'Prohibitive' Levy Would Defeat Own Purpose and Cut Total Income for Free School Books,
Dealers' Head Asserts.

SHARP REDUCTION IN SALES FORECAST

Doom of 10-Cent Bottle
Seen in Two-Cent Taxes; Revenue Now Earmarked to Provide Textbooks

Charging the proposed increase in state taxes on beer will sound the doom of the 5-cent glass and the 10-cent bottle of the beverage, dealers yesterday launched a fight on the bill, which is scheduled to come up for final passage in the house of representatives this morning.

The present state tax on beer is $2.50 per barrel or slightly less than one cent per bottle. The new tax schedule fixes the tax on barrel or draught beer at $4.50 but also provides that for beer sold in bottles the tax shall be 2 cents per bottle.

$6.48 Per Barrel. In launching the fight on the tax, the Retail Beer and Wine Dealers of Georgia, Inc., through their president, Paul Wilson, asserted the 2 cents per bottle tax would make the levy $6.48 per barrel on bottled beer.

"This tax is prohibitive," Wilson asserted. The head of the Beer Dealers declared that if the bill is put through it will defeat the state's "own purpose," that of providing funds to purchase free school books for the pupils of the elementary schools.

Wilson declared the high tax would bring about so sharp a decline in the consumption of beer that the state would not obtain as much revenue as it needs.

'COWBOYS' HOLD UP TRAIN IN DESERT

Apache Limited Workmen Killed as Duo Stage
'Wild West' Gunplay

DEMING, N. M., Nov. 25.—(AP) Two armed and dangerous cowboy cowboys attempted a desert train robbery which cost the life of a switchman today but were floored by the fists of enraged passengers and trainmen.

The fantastic "wild west" gunplay of the young tenderfoot aboard the Southern Pacific's Apache limited resulted in the fatal shooting of W. L. Smith, of El Paso.

Lashed to car seats, they were brought here where they identified themselves as Henry Lorenz, 22, formerly of Manitowish, Wis., and Harry Dwyer, 27, of Canada. The two boarded the train at El Paso about midnight.

As the train approached Mt. Smith, one of them drew a gun and the other a knife. The switchman, who was standing on the platform, was killed by the knife.

Brakeman Jim Velsir was added under compulsion of a pointed pistol. While one of the robbers covered the trainmen, his companion started back through the train and began taking money and valuables from the 150 passengers on board.

As the train neared Hachita, N. M., near the Mexican border, the brakeman was commanded to signal the train to stop.

Attempt to Leave Train. Then, as the youths attempted to leave the front coach, Smith grappled with Lorenz. As Dwyer raced up the aisle to his aid, Sam Webb, 65-year-old negro mechanic, of El Paso, stuck out his foot and brought Dwyer smashing to the floor, his head striking a seat.

K. C. Moon, a switchman, joined Smith in an attack on Lorenz, and passengers swarmed into the fray.

In the melee, Lorenz' gun went off and Smith fell, mortally wounded. He died as the train was entering Arizona.

Both gunmen were beaten into submission and tied to seats until Hachita was reached, where they were turned over to Sheriff R. L. Franer.

REGENTS SET DATE FOR BUILDING BIDS

$1,400,000 Program for New Structures Under Way by Dec. 2, 3 and 4.

Regents of the University System announced yesterday that bids will be opened December 2, 3 and 4 for the 17 new buildings comprising the $1,400,000 program revealed several weeks ago.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System, said the board hoped to announce shortly 16 additional buildings of the three-year program to be contracted for some time in the spring.

Bids will be received for the board by its building committee, headed by Regent Miller Bell, of Milledgeville.

Thursday, December 2, bids will be opened on an agricultural research building at Tifton to cost $57,500; a physical education building at Milledgeville, $98,511; and two classroom buildings at Georgia Tech, $132,500 each.

On Friday, December 3, bids will be opened on a dairy products building at Athens, $86,000; a practice school at Athens, $149,860; a building at Carrollton, $31,000; a dormitory at Milledgeville, $99,000; a practice school at Statesboro, $82,000; and a practice school at Milledgeville, $82,000.

On Saturday, December 4, bids will be opened on a music building at Milledgeville, $60,000; a dining hall at Cochran, $31,500; a library and waterworks plant at Statesboro, $43,000; a classroom at Athens, $189,075; a dormitory at Dahlonega, $60,000; and a dormitory at Statesboro, $60,000.

The buildings already completed in the University System cost $1,042,080 and the buildings on which confirmation is still pending will cost $1,321,191, bringing the total building program to nearly $4,000,000. The Public Works Administration is paying 45 per cent of the cost and the state 55 per cent.

Chancellor Sanford said that the program is the largest ever undertaken by a state university system.

Plane With 11 Aboard Is Missing in Canada

HUDSON, Ontario, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press)—An airplane with nine passengers and a crew of two was reported missing tonight on a 120-mile flight from Pickle lake to Sioux lookout.

The plane, piloted by Ken Smith, of Starratt Airways, left Pickle lake yesterday afternoon. The journey by air normally takes less than an hour.

Names of the passengers were not available, but it was believed they were members of the Pickle Crow or Central Patricia Gold Mines Company staff. The second member of the crew was mechanic Keith Gregson.

Pickle lake is 130 miles north-east, and Sioux lookout is 18 miles east of here.

Company officials said the airplane might have come down at Route Portage, 85 miles north, because of fog.

Fog today prevented airplanes from leaving Hudson to make a search.

Yule Seals Go On Sale Here For Crusade

Atlanta Joins Rest of World
in 1937 Drive on Tuberculosis Today.

With Mayor William B. Hartsfield endorsing the campaign by buying the first sheet of Christmas seals from the Tuberculosis Association, Atlanta today joins the rest of the world in the 1937 crusade against tuberculosis.

With a greater need than ever before for increased support and aid, the Atlanta association is mailing 34,000 letters, containing over 6,000,000 seals, to individuals, business firms, and organizations in this area. At the same time, the Georgia association will put 14,500,000 seals into the hands of over 100 committees throughout the state for distribution in the outlying areas.

Ready for Big Sale. "We are preparing for the greatest sale in our history," reported Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary of the Atlanta association. "We are dependent upon the Christmas seal sale and private donations for one-third of our operating expenses, and it is imperative that the full amount be raised this year. Present economic conditions will bring a larger number of patients to our door during the next few months, and we must be prepared to receive them."

The seals this year are designed with the jovial old town crier, holding a lighted lantern in one hand and a brilliant seal in the other, proclaiming the news that tuberculosis is curable.

The Georgia association has joined this year with the State Board of Health and the assistance division of the State Department of Welfare in a program of "social service treatment" and tuberculosis education in the high schools.

Re-establish Patients. In this manner the association is making an effort to persuade and re-establish the tuberculosis patient after he has been released from treatment at the sanatorium. The program is based on an agreement made with 58 doctors throughout the state to work with the association in providing continued treatment for patients after leaving the hospitals.

Heretofore doctors have treated tubercular patients without remuneration; this plan, however, will provide for a minimum fee to be paid the doctors by the association.

PURPLE GANGSTER SLAIN BY GUNMEN

Four Other Persons Are Wounded as 20 Pistol
Shots Are Fired in Grill.

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A multiplicity of motives and dearth of clues handicapped police search tonight for two gunmen who shot down Harry Millman, "lone wolf of the underworld," in a crowded Twelfth street cocktail grill early today.

Four men fell wounded and 60 Thanksgiving eve merry-makers were menaced by the barrage of 20 pistol shots. Two of the victims were employed in Millman's horse race handbook, and the gunman deliberately turned their pistols on them after pumping nine bullets into Millman. The other victims were bystanders.

Purple Gang Leader. Millman, 27 years old, was known as the last leader of Detroit's notorious "Purple Gang," which was disrupted by the repeal of prohibition and by blasts of gunfire, and police said he had "lived on borrowed time." It was the second attempt on his life within three months.

Police said there were "at least 20 tenable motives" for his slaying. The motive most generally accepted was reprisal for attempting to "muscle in" on other rackets.

'Paid Executioners.' Police expressed the belief that the killers were brought from some other city as paid "executioners." Supporting that theory was the fact that the slayers fled in an automobile with New York license plates. The plates had been reported stolen.

The two wounded associates of Millman were Harry Gross and Harry Cooper. Gross was critically wounded in the shoulder, back and abdomen. Cooper suffered only a flesh wound in the neck.

The wounded bystanders were Abe Betensky, a Detroit linoleum salesman who was dining with his wife in the adjacent restaurant, and Harry Shulak, Toledo, Ohio, furrier who was standing beside Millman at the bar. Betensky, wounded seriously in the back and shoulder, fell at his wife's feet. Shulak was shot in the left side and hand.

100 Anti-Nazi Pickets Storm Dock As Hitler War Chief Lands in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Sixty policemen held back about 100 pickets, opposed to Nazism and Hitler, when the liner Europa docked today with Captain Fritz Wiedemann on board.

Captain Wiedemann was Corporal Adolf Hitler's commanding officer in the World War. Now he is one of the three personal adjutants of Chancellor Adolf Hitler. The pickets protested with banners and signs, but only four were allowed to cross the street to march outside the pier. The captain, tall and of Prussian military bearing, said he came here with Mrs. Wiedemann chiefly because their daughter, Anna Marie, 18, gave such glowing accounts of the United States after a visit last summer. He wanted to see for himself whether her stories were true.

"I see no prospect for war," he said when asked about conditions in Europe. Asked whether he would discuss with Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, a plan to combat Communism, he said he had "never heard the name of Senator Vandenberg."

He remained on board for nearly an hour after the ship docked, and when he left, the pickets, who had been chanting words of displeasure with all of Hitler's works, apparently did not recognize him. German consulate officials greeted him. He will go to Washington shortly to see the city, he said, but not to discuss politics.

RIVERS' LEADERS TO 'GO DOWN LINE' FOR NEW PROPOSAL

Several Details of Bill
Are Yet To Be Worked Out; Levy Revisions
Program Slated to Come Up for Action Today.

SENATE BODY OKAYS EXEMPTION PLAN

Administration Expected To Meet First Test
During Day on Plan To Raise Tax on Beer.

Sponsored by administration leaders if not by the Rivers administration itself, a 1 per cent gross income tax bill, designed to raise upwards of $10,000,000 was being prepared yesterday for submission to the general assembly today or tomorrow.

Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county, a member of the Rivers high command in the lower house, was drawing the measure. At Bainbridge where he was spending the holiday with his family, Representative J. M. Simmons, of Decatur county, former chairman of the senate tax committee, likewise announced he was preparing a gross income tax bill which he said he would submit to the house in the event the Key measure did not coincide with his views on taxation.

Strong Rivers Supporters. Key and Simmons both are strong Rivers supporters and there appeared to be every indication that the administration leadership in the house would "go down the line" for the gross income tax bill.

Representative Key said there were several details of his bill yet to be worked out, and it was possible that it would not be ready before tomorrow.

"My bill will follow the Indiana law," the Jasper member said. "It saved the state of Indiana from financial chaos and will do the same thing for Georgia."

Representative R. H. Freeman Jr., of Bibb county, chairman of the house ways and means committee, said he would not favor any tax plan for the time being but would stand ready to lead the fight for approval of any bill approved by his committee.

Thanksgiving Recess. The assembly will resume its deliberations preparatory to taking up a projected tax revision program this morning following a recess for the Thanksgiving holiday.

In the senate where two of Governor Rivers' New Deal measures are scheduled for discussion, Senator David S. Atkinson, of Savannah, senate floor leader, predicted an overwhelming vote in support of the measures. The first would provide for a tax exemption up to $300 on household and kitchen furniture while the second would provide a state, city and school district tax exemption up to $2,000.

Both measures, the former sponsored by Senate President John B. Spivey and the latter by Senator Atkinson, already have been approved by the senate finance committee. The senate, however, Wednesday adopted a motion calling for an opinion from Attorney General Yeomans as to whether or not it may pare down the $300

Lee Lewman, Construction Head, Succumbs at 68 in Kansas CityFormer Atlantan Was in Charge of Erection of Flatiron Building, Other Well-Known Structures Here; Funeral Rites Today.

Lee Lewman, the man who built the Flatiron building in Atlanta, died Wednesday in Kansas City, Mo. He was 68.

He began his career as a construction engineer in Louisville, Ky., as a partner with two brothers, in the M. T. Lewman and Company. And from this beginning his fame spread, getting him jobs erecting numerous buildings throughout the south.

The company was composed originally of Lee, Harry and "Cap" Lewman, the latter two long since dead. It was named in honor of their father.

Here 17 years.

Here, as a partner of the concern, Lee Lewman built the famous Flatiron building, now known as the Georgia Savings Bank building. During his seven years' residence here and connection with the company, other buildings on which he was construction engineer included the old John Silvey building, which has since been torn down and rebuilt.

When the old Markham hotel, on Central avenue, burned, Mr. Lewman rebuilt the property, which is now occupied by wholesale houses. His last construction job in Atlanta was the erection of his residence at 28 Peachtree place, now owned by his wife, the former Miss Adeline Edwards, a member of one of Atlanta's outstanding families, who has been living at the Georgian Terrace hotel for several years.

Atlanta Clubs.

With numerous activities outside his work in Atlanta, Mr. Lewman belonged to several clubs in the city, among them the Capitol City Club, Druid Hills Golf Club, Piedmont Driving Club and the Atlanta Athletic Club.

In addition to buildings in Louisville and Atlanta, Mr. Lewman was in charge of erection of structures in Louisiana and Alabama. Later, he resigned from the M. T. Lewman and Company and started business for himself.

His first office, following his severed connection with the original firm, were in Muscogee, Oklahoma, where he also maintained a small ranch. From there he moved to Kansas City, Mo., where he lived until his death.

DePauw Graduate.

Born in Greencastle, Ind., Mr. Lewman was a graduate of DePauw University and was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He was a thirty-second degree Mason, a Shriner and a member of the Kansas City club.

In addition to his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Idolene Lewman McCook, formerly of Chattanooga, Tenn., now of Oregon; a brother, Wynne Lewman, of Jeffersonville, Ind., and a sister, Mrs. James R. Riggs, of Sullivan, Ind., survive.

Funeral rites for Mr. Lewman will be conducted today at the family cemetery, in Prather, Indiana.

ASSEMBLY TO GET NEW TAX MEASURE

and $2,000 figure in the tax exemption bills.

In the house two important tax matters are scheduled for consideration with every indication that the Rivers administration will meet its first test of strength on taxes during the day.

This test is expected to come when the Harris bill, sponsored by Speaker Roy W. Harris, and providing an increase in the tax on beer from $2.50 per barrel to $4.50 a barrel is brought up for final passage.

The house ways and means committee voted approval of the tax increase by a vote of 31 to 16, some of the bills opponents announcing they planned to carry their fight against its adoption to the floor.

To Fight Passage.

Speaker Harris and Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, house floor leader and an ardent dry, are expected to lead the fight for passage of the bill.

The other tax bill on today's calendar is a measure sponsored by Representative Booth, of Barrow county, providing for a tax on theater chains. It may not be acted on if a drawn out fight develops on the beer bill.

Both houses plan for a session tomorrow morning. The entire membership will be the guests of Dr. M. L. Brittain at the Georgia Tech football game tomorrow afternoon.

REBELS THREATEN TO CHASE LOYAL PLANES TO FRANCE

Spanish Insurgents Claim Complicity of Popular Front Government.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Nov. 25. — (P) — The Spanish Insurgent regime today threatened to carry the civil war across the French border if government planes again raid insurgent positions "after crossing French territory."

Insurgent authorities at Salamanca announced their warplanes would "chase and fight government planes in France" and charged 18 government raiders yesterday entered insurgent territory from France with the "evident complicity of the French popular front government."

Although the French foreign office called the charges "ridiculous" they ordered border authorities to investigate. French officials said it was "quite possible" government planes flew high along the French side of the border and then swooped south into insurgent Spain.

We hardly could be expected to hang three-mile-high air ne along the frontier of keep planes in the air along every mile of the Pyrenees frontier," officials said. They indicated Insurgents had been guilty equally and said they would "take proper action if we establish either one side or the other has been flying over our territory."

The insurgent communique declared: Nationalists demand to know what the French press and parliament are doing to give consent to these crimes. Blood thus spilled provokes extraordinary indignation among the Spanish people against the criminals and their accomplices."

Bombing operations behind the lines were reported by both Insurgents and government to have reached a new high. Insurgents said they had bombed Alcaniz and Monzon, "inflicting heavy loss of life." The government reported its warplanes dumped tons of explosives on Tudela and Jaca on the northern Aragon front.

PLANES RAID GUADALAJARA; 15 ARE KILLED, 50 WOUNDED

MADRID, Nov. 25. — (P) — Insurgent air bombers were reported to have killed 15 persons and injured 50 today in a surprise raid on Guadalajara, 30 miles northeast of Madrid.

The planes launched about 160 bombs, which wrecked many buildings. The casualty list is expected to increase.

Government planes quickly pursued the raiders, but the Insurgents escaped in a mist.

The raid apparently was the worst of six reported at Zaragoza, Huesca, Beni Carlo, Santa Magdalena and Vinaroz on Spain's east coast.

Feast Remnants Make Delightful Meals

It's called Remnant Salad, but not a shred will remain.

After the sun, the rain; after the feast, the leftovers! But all is not hush that glitters on the menu horizon after the noble meal is over!

That leftover turkey or other fowl will make the basis of another delightful meal or may be combined with leftover celery, green pepper, salad dressing and those juicy grapefruit and oranges, you bought for the feast anyway, will trim those leftovers into a salad you will be proud to serve.

Remnant Salad. Segment two medium-size grapefruit and marinate the sections in mild French dressing. Dice few stalks of celery, and cut green pepper in thin strips. Combine with sliced and diced turkey and mix all thoroughly with mayonnaise dressing. Serve on crisp lettuce in salad bowl and garnish with additional mayonnaise and strip of scarlet pimiento if desired.

Turkey Ramekins with Tomato Sauce*
Broiled Sweet Potatoes
Ginger Ale Fruit Salad*
Pumpkin Pecan Ice Cream
Tarts*

Ramekin of Turkey. Two cups ground leftover turkey, chicken or veal, 2 tablespoons fat, 1-2 cup stock, 1 cup milk, 3 egg yolks well beaten, 1-2 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 tablespoonful finely chopped parsley, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce.

Combine ingredients and add to well-greased individual glass baking dishes or molds. Place in a pan of hot water and bake 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Unmold onto a platter and serve with tomato sauce. Serves 6.

Tomato Sauce. Two cups stewed or canned tomatoes, 1 tablespoonful chopped onion, 1-2 tablespoonful chopped green pepper or a dash of red pepper, 3 peppercorns, piece of bay leaf, celery leaves, 1-2 teaspoonful sugar, 1-2 teaspoonful celery salt, 1-2 teaspoonful salt, 3 cloves, 2 tablespoonfuls fat, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, 1 cup sliced mushrooms.

Boil the tomatoes and seasonings together for 20 minutes and press through a sieve. Cook together the fat and flour, add gradually the hot strained tomatoes. Simmer for 10 minutes and then add the mushrooms.

Ginger Ale Fruit Salad. Three tablespoonfuls gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 4 cups ginger ale, 3 tablespoonfuls lemon juice, 4 tablespoonfuls sugar, dash salt, orange and grapefruit gores.

Sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water, and when it is soft, melt it over hot water. Add the ginger ale very slowly at first, stirring constantly. Add the lemon, salt and sugar and chill in your refrigerator or over ice cubes and water until it has partially thickened, stirring occasionally so that it thickens evenly. When thick enough to hold fruit in place, put some of the gelatin in a mold which has been brushed with olive oil or glycerin. Arrange gores of orange and grapefruit which have been freed from all membrane on the bottom of the pan or standing around the sides. Return to the refrigerator until firm. Unmold and garnish with lettuce or endive and more gores of orange and grapefruit as well as red or green cherries. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 10 to 12.

Pumpkin Pecan Ice Cream Tarts. One tablespoonful cornstarch, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoonful cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoonful ginger, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 3-4 cup cooked or canned pumpkin (sieved), 1-3 teaspoonful salt, 1 cup whipping cream, 1-3 cup pecans, broken, 6 individual tart shells.

Mix together cornstarch, sugar, cinnamon and ginger. Add milk and cook over hot water until thick. Add to slightly beaten egg yolks and cook again for five minutes, stirring constantly. Add pumpkin and salt. Cool. Fold in whipped cream and stiffly beaten egg whites. Freeze with Temperature Selector turned to No. 1. When partially frozen, beat with wooden spoon, adding the nuts and return to refrigerator to complete freezing, and when frozen, reset the control to No. 3 or 4. Serve in individual tart shells garnished with sweetened whipped cream, which has been flavored with vanilla or almond; chopped candied orange peel or whole pecans. Serves 6.

Turkey la King in Patty Shells
Vegetable Salad Ring
Refrigerator Rolls

Cranberry Fruit Sherbet. One cup sugar, 3-4 cup water, 1-2 cup white corn syrup, 3 bananas, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1 cup cranberry pulp, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoonfuls sugar.

Boil sugar and water five minutes. Add white corn syrup and chill. Put bananas through a potato ricer or sieve. Combine two cups of cranberries with one cup of water, and simmer until soft. When soft, press through a sieve and chill. Combine bananas, 1 cup cranberry pulp, orange juice and lemon juice and add to syrup. Beat egg whites until thick but not stiff; add to them the 2 tablespoonfuls sugar. Combine above mixture with beaten egg whites and place in refrigerator with Temperature Selector set at No. 1. When frozen 1-2 inch from side of pan, take from refrigerator and beat thoroughly with a wooden spoon, taking care not to allow mixture to melt, and return to refrigerator to freeze until the desired consistency is reached. Reset control to No. 3 or 4 for storage. Serves 6 to 8.

Turkey Pot Pie. Make a slightly thickened gravy of some turkey stock, or use half stock and half turkey gravy. Add to this enough cold cooked turkey, cut in scallops, to make the filling for a pie. Add also a few tablespoons each of cold cooked carrots, peas and carrots cut in thin rounds. A few mushrooms may also be used, if desired. Pour the mixture in a casserole and cover the top with a sheet of pastry; prick with holes to allow for the escape of steam, and bake in the oven until the crust is brown.

Turkey Combination Sandwiches. Cold sliced white meat of the turkey will go much farther, and be more appetizing, if you combine it with slices of Virginia ham and hot fried bacon in a three-layer sandwich which also includes lettuce leaves and slices of tomato. Either Russian or mayonnaise dressing may go with this sandwich, for those who think dressing necessary for the tomato and lettuce layer.

Tongue also combines well with turkey and lettuce in a single or two-layer sandwich. Bacon may be included, or not, as you wish.

Baked Onions.

A dish that's a cinch to serve is baked onions in celery sauce. It's easy eating. You make it so: Boil 1 dozen medium-sized onions, then drain and place in casserole.

Pour 1-2 cupful cream of celery soup over onions. Sprinkle with 1-2 cupful buttered bread crumbs mixed with 2 tablespoonfuls grated American cheese.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes, or until crusting of crumbs is golden brown.

RAIL WORKERS ASKED TO RUN MEXICO'S LINES

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25. — (P) —

The National Railway Workers' Syndicate today was confronted with a proposal from President Lazaro Cardenas that it take over and operate Mexico's national railway system.

Cardenas, who decreed expropriation of the nation's 7,114 miles of railroads last June as part of his socialization program, made a condition that the workers pay the government 14,000,000 pesos ($3,780,000) a year.

Of that sum the government would use 9,000,000 pesos for repair and replacement of equipment, 3,000,000 pesos for taxes and 2,000,000 pesos for amortization of the railway debt.

300 Unfortunate Boys and Girls Are Given Thanksgiving Dinner

Taken From Homes Where Holiday Turkey Was Not To Be Had They Are Fed Through Donations by Friends of Atlanta Mission.

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.
"This is the first Thanksgiving dinner I've ever had, and it's good!"

"I'll say so," declared a red-haired, freckled boy, yesterday as he wiped the cranberry juice from his lips and reached over for another piece of turkey at the big dinner at Atlanta Mission, 125 Ivy street, N. E.

"Approximately 300 boys and girls, not one of them living in homes that could provide a Thanksgiving dinner, were brought in big trucks from many quarters of the city for the Thanksgiving service at 11 o'clock in the chapel at the mission. Holding exactly the same hour, I couldn't be there to hear the children sing, but just before I went into the pulpit at Druid Hills, I called Dr. Williams on the phone and he asked me to listen.

I could hear them singing, and this was the chorus that came to me over the telephone wire: "Jesus loves the little children, All the children of the world, Yellow, black, or brown, or white, They are precious in His sight, Jesus loves the little children of the world."

Later when I got down to the mission the children were seated in the dining room eating. The tables were laden with turkey and dressing and cranberry sauce and rice and gravy and vegetables and hot breads, milk, cakes and pies.

Many people contribute. A number of the trustees joined with Dr. Williams and his associates in serving the Thanksgiving dinner. Men and women in every walk of life in Atlanta had contributed to the dinner, merchants giving food and others giving money with which some of the menu was purchased.

A lovely little girl, about 10 years old, was standing on the curb in front of the mission crying as the children came laughing from the building to climb into the trucks. One of the trustees said to her:

"What is it dear?"
"You see, sir," she sobbed, "I ran back to give mother her medicine when the truck stopped in our alley, and they didn't know about it, and when I got back to the door, they had gone. I ran as fast as I could to get here, but I couldn't make it."

Child Gets Everything. She did make it, that is she made the dinner, even though she missed the singing—because she was escorted into the kitchen and there before her was a bountiful plate of turkey and all the trimmings. And when she had finished her dinner, the matron said:

"Would you take this to mother?" And the happy little girl went away in the car of one of the trustees with a warm dinner for her sick mother.

That was the sort of Thanksgiving it was at Atlanta's Mission yesterday, and it will be that sort of day every day as Atlanta responds to the appeal of Dr. Felton Williams to help those who cannot now help themselves. And I believe it must make everyone happy to know that this ministry is carried on in this community for little children and for grown-ups who have come upon difficult days.

Monty Turns Up With Bride-to-Be; Both Disappear

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 25.—(P)—Mysterious John Montague, who veiled his past in strict secrecy until revealed as Laverne Moore, of New York, turned up with a mysterious bride-to-be today—then disappeared.

Friends announced the mighty golfer plans to wed Mrs. Esther Plunkett, described as a wealthy Beverly Hills social figure.

The wedding may be in southern California or Las Vegas, N. M., or Yuma, Ariz.—which wasn't much help to the curious.

This much is certain—the ceremony will be soon, probably this week-end, said Montague's friends, who vouched that the engagement is authentic but said they were sworn to secrecy regarding details.

Little is known here of Mrs. Plunkett, who has known Monty several years. She greeted him with a kiss Monday when he arrived from New York, where he was acquitted of a seven-year-old robbery charge.

Mrs. Plunkett is not listed in Beverly Hills' blue book of socially elite. Neither is she in the telephone or city directories of metropolitan Los Angeles.

Neither Montague nor Mrs. Plunkett could be found, rousing speculation whether they already are altar-bred.

So it seems that Monty, who mingles freely with many of the film colony's headlines, will have much to say if he is married, where and when if he is married.

CECIL SAILS
Declares War More Likely Every Month.
NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(P)—The Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, winner of the Nobel peace prize for 1937, sailed for England today as a guest of the United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The church pastor, the Rev. Clayton E. Williams, suggested it would be particularly appropriate for the Windsors to attend because "the first Americans to celebrate Thanksgiving were English."

It was the Duke's first appearance in Paris for public church service. He remained away from Church of England Armistice Day services here because the vicar said the Duke would be unwelcome.

GRAIN FUTURES SKID IN WINNIPEG MART

Bearish Reports From Argentine, Liverpool Weakness Induce Selling.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 25.—(P)—Bearish reports of Argentine crop conditions and weakness at Liverpool induced general selling on Winnipeg grain exchange today to send all grain futures skidding.

New seasonal lows were established in a few positions with wheat futures closing 3-8 to 2-1-8 lower, November at $1.09 1-4, December at $1.07 5-8, May at $1.07 1-8 and July at $1.03 1-8.

Prices eased from the start, dropping nearly 3 cents in the first hour on sales by locals, eastern and seaboard firms. Though trading was light in view of the United States holiday, November and December dropped more than 4 cents near the close.

Little support was offered. Export sales of Canadian wheat were confined to odd lots. Cash prices dipped sharply due to heavier offerings and dull demand.

November wheat and all flax futures established new low levels for the year.

Excellent quality of first returns of new crop wheat in northern Argentina, forecasts of clear weather and sharply lower Buenos Aires quotations were principal market factors at Winnipeg and Liverpool.

Liquidation credited to speculative accounts sent flax and rye futures 3 cents lower, but export buying steadied barley. Oats eased 2 to 1 cent near the close.

BUS LINES STRIKE PEACE IS SOUGHT

tives said about 1,000 drivers were normally employed on the lines.

Series of Fist Fights.
Strikers and non-strikers staged a series of fist fights at the Cleveland terminal after a man identifying himself as Ray Krause, a striking driver, threw himself under a New York bound bus and defied the driver to proceed. Police held Krause and three other men for investigation.

Connel said tonight another conference with union representatives was set for 11 a. m. tomorrow, an added that he hoped to meet with Greyhound officials tomorrow afternoon.

The companies against which the brotherhood's strike order was issued are: Central Greyhound, Pennsylvania Greyhound, Eastern Greyhound of New England, Ohio Greyhound, Capital Greyhound, Richmond (Va.) Greyhound, Illinois Greyhound and Canadian Greyhound. The lines operate over a network extending from Chicago and St. Louis, on the west, to Norfolk, Va., and Portland, Maine, on the east.

Developments over the area included:
New York—J. L. Sheppard, company president, said "Only five out of 80 employees in New York are out," but strikers claimed the walkout 50 per cent effective. Service suspended to Philadelphia and Washington.

Baltimore—Greyhound Superintendent John Breslin reported 17 on strike; operations to Philadelphia halted.

Washington—Operations on schedule; company said 15 per cent of drivers on strike. Richmond, Va.—Greyhound superintendent said "About 8 or 10—most of them extra boys" joined strike; schedules maintained.

Cleveland—Police cruisers escorted buses to the city limits. Philadelphia—Greyhound announced men being trained to take places of 100 drivers who picketed terminal.

50 Per Cent Strike.
Buffalo—Dispatcher reported 50 per cent of 67 drivers on strike; interstate service unimpaired but local trips delayed.

Detroit—Fifteen drivers on strike, company executive said, with 90 of 125 giving "loyalty pledges." Schedules maintained.

Boston—New England line announced "enough drivers have assured us they would not strike to permit regular operations."

Syracuse, N. Y.—A Boston-bound Greyhound bus was disabled at the New York Central railroad station here tonight when it was forced to stop by an auto blockade. Police blamed striking Greyhound drivers.

Chicago—Police Sergeant Michael McNerney said when the bus stopped several men lifted a cover over the engine at the rear and disabled the ignition system with a hammer. Passengers were transferred to another bus.

St. Louis—Forty drivers on strike. Schedules impaired and passengers routed over other bus lines or railroads.

FISHER BODY WORKERS RETURN TO JOBS TODAY
DETROIT, Nov. 25.—(P)—Part of the force at the Fisher Body Corporation plant in Pontiac, held five days by strikers, will return to work tomorrow and restoration of normal operations is set for Monday.

St. Louis—Forty drivers on strike. Schedules impaired and passengers routed over other bus lines or railroads.

STRIKERS EXPECTED TO RESUME PICKETING
ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25.—(P)—Leaders of a strike called by the United Automobile Workers of America at the Ford Motor Company indicated tonight picketing would be resumed tomorrow when the assembly plant reopens after the Thanksgiving holiday.

Further details of the strikers' moves in their protest against alleged discrimination by the company against union members were not disclosed.

2 INJURED AS AUTO PLUNGES OFF BANK

Dunwoody Girl Reported in 'Poor Condition' After Holiday Accident.

Miss Estelle Barfield, 20, of Dunwoody, was reported to be in "poor condition" at Grady hospital last night from injuries received when the car in which she was riding plunged over a 15-foot embankment at Davis drive, near Northside drive, yesterday. Mrs. Edward Powell, 23, 1278 Memorial drive, was also injured in the accident.

The two women were on their way for a Thanksgiving Day visit in Cobb county when the car went out of control and plunged over the embankment. Miss Barfield received lacerations about the face and an injury to one of her eyeballs.

Mrs. Powell, who was driving the car, was released from Grady hospital after being treated for cuts and bruises.

Three persons were admitted to Emory University hospital with injuries received in a collision of two cars at the intersection of Clearmont drive and the new highway, near Decatur. They were identified as Miss Sheila Griffin, fractured pelvis bone; Miss Gertrude Green, broken left leg, and Roy Rosser, fractured collar bone. Misses Thesia Reeves and Patricia Osburn, passengers in the cars, were treated and dismissed.

BEER TAX BOOST TERMED RUINOUS

much under the new tax as it obtains under the present levy. His statement on the beer tax follows:

"The increase on malt beverages proposed in house bill No. 1 will definitely stop the sale of 10-cent bottled beer in Georgia.

"While the bill provides a tax of $4.50 a barrel on draught beer, few dealers handle the beverage in this shape, but they do distribute bottled beer.

"The bill places a tax of 2 cents a bottle on bottled beer, or a gross tax of $6.45 per barrel on beer when sold by the bottle. This tax is prohibitive as it reduces the profit to the disappearing point, and it will cause the great majority of retailers in the state to stop selling it.

Additional Taxes.
"This condition will throw all school board calculations out of line and will result in additional taxes being imposed to equalize the loss of revenue the decreased sale of beer will entail.

"Governor Rivers in his speech at Villa Rica Wednesday, said: 'The free school book program has placed 200,000 additional children in Georgia schools this year. He pointed out the saving to Georgians of $1,500,000 through state purchase of new textbooks this year, and said the present school book plan will save Georgians three million dollars a year thereafter.'

Loss of Revenue.
"As the revenue from the licensing and sale of malt beverages goes to the public schools of the state, and is earmarked for purchase of free school books for our children, it can readily be seen what the effect of the loss of revenue will mean to the program of free textbooks.

"The cash in hand from malt beverage revenue is a big item, and, if it enables the state to save a million and a half dollars this year, it should be welcomed and not thrown away by unwise legislation such as House Bill No. 1 most definitely is."

NEGRO HOLDUP SLAIN BY CORNELIA VIOLET

Sam Kimzey yesterday answered a "negro" holdup man's demand, "What you got?" with five bullets from a hidden automatic. The unidentified negro was dead on arrival at Grady hospital.

Kimzey, of Cornelia, had just left Piedmont hospital where his wife is ill and himself was admitted for treatment of a knife wound on the neck inflicted by the negro.

Originality—Like Honor Found Among Thieves
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 25.—(P)—The scene in Ray Comstock's beer parlor today was a little out of the ordinary, even as robberies go.

Three robbers walked in. One wore the white cap, sun glasses and yellow slicker of a yachtsman. Another was dressed as a college boy in a sweater and sweater. The third wore a college boy's skull cap and sweater.

The fellow in the yachtsman's getup shot open the cash drawer with a shotgun and the trio left with $20 and a bottle of whiskey. Vernon Daniels, a customer, saved $11 by chewing up the currency with a mouthful of crackers.

POSSE, DOGS HUNT WOMAN'S SLAYER

Bank Supply Official's Wife Killed Near Home
MEXICO, Mo., Nov. 25.—(P)—Her skull fractured, Mrs. Margaret Mortimer, 40, died in a hospital today after being slugged by an unidentified assailant, perhaps the same man who attacked two other women here within the last year.

Returning from a shopping trip, she was struck down last night in front of a vacant house near her home. A girl, Emily Potts, who was half a block away, heard a scream and, frightened, ran ahead.

Two hours later, Orvid Holtman, a neighbor, heard groans and found Mrs. Mortimer, wife of a bank supply company official, unconscious in the yard of the empty house, where she had been dragged. Nearby was a heavy piece of blood-covered wood.

Colonel Marvin Castel, head of the state highway patrol, and six officers came to Mexico to aid in the hunt for the slayer. Bloodhounds were unable to pick up his trail.

WAR THREATENED BY PARIS MINISTER, ROME PRESS SAYS

France Denies Charges Official Predicted Inevitable War With Italy.

ROME, Nov. 25.—(AP)—An extra, precautionary police guard was stationed tonight about the French embassy in Rome as a result of published reports the French naval minister had forecast inevitable war between France and Italy.

Cesar Campinchi, the French minister, was quoted in the Rome press as saying in a speech at Toulon October 23:

"Why hide it? War with Italy not only is destined, it is necessary... We will have the Fascist hide!"

(The French naval ministry in Paris declared Rome press reports Cesar Campinchi, minister of the navy, had forecast war with Italy were a "complete invention.")

(The statement said that Campinchi made no speech at Toulon November 23—the day the Italian press said he spoke—and that in a speech he made there the previous day he made no mention of foreign affairs.)

Campinchi was quoted as saying Italy had designs on Corsica, the French island in the Mediterranean, and adding "it is necessary for Italy to cease the infamous comedy of an unredempted Corsica, of an Italian Corsica that awaits liberation."

Fascist officials said "there is great disgust in Italy over the speech," but no diplomatic protest was contemplated.

Virginia Gayda, the authoritative Rome editor, denied the charges. He wrote that "once more Europe and Roosevelt, who likes critical distractions on the subject of authoritarian regimes and their pretended aggressiveness" were informed the France of the People's Front government "plots aggression against Fascist Italy."

WAR MAY BE AVERTED, BINGHAM DECLARES

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Belief that another European war was "averted entirely" was expressed by Ambassador Robert W. Bingham when he returned from his London post today for a physical checkup.

The envoy also said the prospects for the completion of an Anglo-American trade treaty were "far better than at any time in the past."

Bingham, who suffered a recurrence of malaria in England, was admitted to Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore for a thorough examination late today. After that he planned to confer with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull before returning to London.

Doctors said his condition was not serious, but he was ordered to rest and visitors were restricted.

He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Henrietta Bingham. "There is sound reason to hope that war may be averted entirely," he said. "It must be remembered that in Europe there is a sort of chronic crisis, but since an actual outbreak has been averted, there is room for hope that in the end, war may entirely be averted."

LIMIT ON PRESIDENT IN NEUTRALITY SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Senator Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, prepared today a resolution to limit Presidential discretion under the neutrality act. He said the present law "tends to get us into war instead of keeping us out of it."

Instead of permitting the President to decide alone whether to invoke the act, the resolution would require the executive to report to congress whenever he had reason to believe there was a state of war, or civil strife, threatening the peace of the United States.

If congress concurred in his views, the President would be required to proclaim the existence of a state of war, naming belligerent states.

RITES FOR MAX DOBBS SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

MARIETTA, Nov. 25.—Rites for Max D. Dobbs, 64, retired Marietta capitalist, who died at Base Hospital 48, Atlanta, late yesterday, will be held at 11 o'clock Friday at the graveside in City cemetery here, the Rev. J. H. Patton and the Rev. I. A. White officiating.

Mr. Dobbs was born and reared here, and received his education at the old Marietta Male Academy, whose reunion he recently was prevented from attending by illness. In early young manhood he went to South America, where he was associated with a steamship line. During the last three years, since his return from South America, he had been connected with a Miami company. He returned here recently.

Mr. Dobbs is survived by two brothers, E. P. Dobbs, former mayor of Marietta, and H. C. Dobbs, of Miami; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian D. Finn and Mrs. Mattie D. Smith, both of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and a number of nieces and nephews.

Georgia Cow Bears Third Set of Twins

ELBERTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Belinda had twins again this week. It's getting to be a habit with her.

Belinda is a cow. She lives a few miles from Elberton on a farm owned by Captain P. M. Hawes.

When news of the latest event reached town, there came with it a report that it was Belinda's third set of twins within four years.

As if this were not enough—and you will agree this is hard to believe—the report said also that one set of triplets was born during the four-year period.

FREIGHTER SINKING; 17 SAILORS MISSING

British Vessel in Gulf Storm Wrecked; Steamer Chagres Saves 18 Men.

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Seventeen mariners were missing tonight aboard the sinking British freighter Nollington Court.

The steamer Chagres, which took off 18 others last night, lost sight of the stricken vessel off Haiti in a rain squall and its fate was undetermined.

Tropical radio here picked up the following message from the Chagres radio operator, who added he had not slept for 50 hours:

"Don't know what happened to steamship Nollington Court. We were standing by when rain squall came up. She had no lights and disappeared in three hours. We searched but not sighted. May have gone ashore on Tortuga Island but could not see them."

Earlier the Chagres broadcast a message to all ships in the vicinity to "keep lookout steamship Nollington Court boats or rafts with crew."

Ship last sighted sinking condition drifting to Tortuga Island with 17 of crew aboard, the message said.

The Chagres added a warning that the freighter's deckload of heavy logs had been jettisoned and they were a menace to navigation.

GULF STORM HEADS TOWARD FLORIDA COAST

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A gulf disturbance which left a freighter and a dredge stranded near the mouth of the Mississippi river, was reported headed toward the northwest Florida coast late today.

The New Orleans Weather Bureau said that barometers were falling and winds were increasing from Pensacola, Fla., eastward.

Storm warnings to vessels in the gulf and small craft near the shore were continued from the mouth of the Mississippi to Carabelle, Fla.

HUNGARY PLEDGES NAZI CO-OPERATION

2 New Members of Anti-Red Pact Hinted.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Informed political circles tonight interpreted a statement made by Hungarian Premier Koloman Daranyi, after a visit with Chancellor Hitler, as indicating Hungary and Austria would join the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo anti-Communist pact.

Daranyi and his foreign minister, Koloman von Kanya, had an hour's "confidential" talk with Hitler as the climax of their official stay.

Daranyi declared Hungary was ready to co-operate in a policy based on friendship with Germany and on the Rome protocols.

(These protocols, already linking Italy, Austria and Hungary with economic and financial bonds, have been the bases of anti-Communist negotiations among the three countries.)

It was admitted, however, actual negotiations to bring Hungary and Austria into the anti-Communist pact had not begun.

Asking for Dolls To Assure Some Child Yule Cheer

With Christmas just around the corner, the Women's Chamber of Commerce has launched a new campaign to collect and dress dolls for the Salvation Army. Atlantans and residents of Fulton county will be asked to "buy a doll and dress a doll," and to participate in the program to insure a happy Christmas for the less fortunate. Shown above with some of the dolls obtained already are, from left to right: Mrs. Clarence Bradley, chairman of the doll project; Brigadier E. F. Holz, of the Salvation Army, and Mrs. Sarah Mosteller, president of the Women's Chamber of Commerce.

'Buy a Doll and Dress a Doll' Drive Launched With Objective of 6,000

Women's Chamber of Commerce Collecting and Dressing Playthings for Yule Distribution Through Salvation Army Toy Shop

"Buy a doll and dress a doll." You have heard that before. It is the Christmas slogan of the Women's Chamber of Commerce, which they have adopted again this year.

The Women's Chamber of Commerce is collecting and dressing dolls to be distributed through the Salvation Army toy shop. In addition to 1,000 dolls furnished already by the Army, the women have set a goal of 5,000 dolls. The women are sponsoring the dressing of all of these.

Children in several schools have already started dressing the dolls. Many dolls with no clothing or unattractively dressed, are being made over with beautiful clothes by the young seamstresses.

People all over the city will be asked to "buy a doll and dress a doll." City, county and state officials, employees of banks, corporations, hotels, department stores, members of the Federated Women's Clubs, sororities—these and many others are participating in the project. In some places of business the men are buying dolls and the ladies dressing them.

Mrs. Clarence Bradley is chairman of the doll committee. She was instrumental in starting the project and served as chairman last year. Mrs. Cephalie Lewis is assistant chairman.

Other officers are Mrs. Sarah Mosteller, president, and Miss Lucille Miles, civic chairman.

CASH BILL REPEAL Revokes President's Authority, Bridges Asks.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP) Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, urged today that President Roosevelt's authority to issue $3,000,000,000 in currency be repealed to prevent any possible demands "for the depelement of paper money inflation."

A proposal by Bridges to repeal the authority now is pending before the senate banking committee.

In a letter to Chairman Wagner, Democrat, New York, of the committee, Bridges said that "the President, fortunately for the country, has evinced as yet no desire to employ the power to issue up to $3,000,000,000 in convertible currency" granted him under an amendment to the agricultural adjustment act.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Lord Baden-Powell, 81-year-old chief scout of the world Boy Scout movement, left today on a tour of Rhodesia, South Africa, despite the protests of friends that the journey might tax his strength.

"They tell me," he said, "it is either going to kill or cure me. I don't mind which it is, so long as I can carry through my work."

Officers of the British steamer Anking, arriving from Amoy, China, reported several of its 700 passengers were slightly injured when the steamer ran through the 160-mile wind.

CITIZENS ABROAD OBSERVE HOLIDAY

Americans From Shanghai Westward Remember Thanksgiving.

By the Associated Press. From battle-torn China westward around the world, American citizens observed the Thanksgiving holiday first celebrated by the Pilgrims and their Indian neighbors at Plymouth Rock, 316 years ago.

The American colony in Shanghai, first to celebrate the holiday, ate Thanksgiving dinners while hungry Chinese victims of the undeclared war stormed rice shops for food.

In Nanjing, an embassy secretary read President Roosevelt's proclamation referring to "a period unhappily marked in many parts of the world by strife," as Americans there waited a renewal of Japanese bombing attacks.

On across Asia and Europe scattered citizens of this country celebrated with prayer and feast.

Washington heard thanks for peace as officials headed by President Roosevelt halted work for the day.

Thousands attended church services, which included at the National Cathedral the reading of George Washington's first Thanksgiving proclamation.

In many eastern cities, particularly New York, costumed children made rounds of various neighborhoods, singing songs and seeking "something for Thanksgiving."

J. C. HUTCHINS SR. PASSES IN ATHENS

Former Marylander Helped To Lay Tracks of Georgia Railroad.

ATHENS, Nov. 25.—(AP)—J. C. Hutchins Sr., 83, pioneer Athens resident, died here early today.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the First Baptist church, the Rev. J. C. Wilkinson officiating, assisted by the Rev. David Cady Wright. Burial was in Oconee Hill cemetery.

Surviving Mr. Hutchins are his wife, Mrs. Lollie Hutchins; two daughters, Mrs. Morton Hodgson and Mrs. Dave Paddock, both of Athens; two sons, J. C. Hutchins Jr., of Athens, and William Ruthertford Hutchins, of Phoenix, Ariz., and a sister, Miss Lydia Hutchins, of St. Mary's county, Maryland.

Mr. Hutchins was a native of Maryland. His family was among the original settlers of that state, holding a land grant of 1,000 acres from King George of England. The family located in St. Mary's county in south Maryland, and there became most influential in the affairs of that state.

Mr. Hutchins came to Georgia in early manhood as an engineer to help survey and lay the tracks for the old Georgia railroad. That was 56 years ago. Shortly after his arrival in Athens he met Miss Lollie Ruthertford, and two years later they were married.

Mr. Hutchins left the railroad field about 35 years ago to become associated with Talmadge Brothers, wholesale grocery company, a connection that continued until his retirement from business about a year ago. After his retirement, Mr. Hutchins' health continued to fail, though not to an alarming extent. About six months ago he suffered a fall which marked the beginning of his physical decline.

Monday he suffered a stroke, followed by complications which brought his death.

ACCIDENT VICTIM'S CONDITION SERIOUS

Train-Auto Crash Sends Three to Hospital.

Robert Locklear, 21, of 23 Astor avenue, one of three injured Wednesday night when the car in which they were riding crashed into a switch engine at Glenwood avenue crossing, was reported to be in serious condition last night at Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital.

Locklear received internal injuries. His brother, Park Locklear, 24, who suffered a broken arm, and Miss Catherine Scott, 20, whose jaw was broken, were reported to be in "fairly good" condition. The automobile struck a switch engine of the Atlanta & West Point railroad belt line.

W. W. Jacobs, of Cleveland, testified that "co-operative associations in my territory, which buy their power from the TVA, have taken some of our customers and are blocking our expansion plans."

TVA attorneys sought to prove that the "utilities neglected rural markets until the authority entered the field." This was denied by the witnesses.

TVA USURPS FIELD, WITNESSES ASSERT

Ruling on Competency of Atlantan as Witness Postponed.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Four Tennessee electric power company district managers told a three-judge federal court today that sale of Tennessee Valley Authority power would result in "usurpation" of private utility markets.

A ruling on the competency as a witness of Charles A. Collier, Atlanta, vice president of the Georgia Power Company, was postponed when utility counsel withdrew him from the stand.

They said he would be recalled later so that a ruling might be made as to his eligibility. The trial—in which 18 utilities are assailing the TVA power program—was adjourned at noon because of Thanksgiving.

"There are very few individuals or businesses financially able to purchase electricity that are not being serviced," said D. R. Bonner, of Harriman, one of the witnesses.

W. W. Jacobs, of Cleveland, testified that "co-operative associations in my territory, which buy their power from the TVA, have taken some of our customers and are blocking our expansion plans."

BRITAIN PLEDGES FRENCH SECURITY

Chamberlain Explains Halifax Visit to Hitler in Answering Commons.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today answered Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's claims for a free hand in central Europe by telling the house of commons Britain is contemplating no agreement with Germany threatening the security of France or any of her allies.

The prime minister thus sought to quiet fears that the recent visit to Germany of Viscount Halifax, lord president of the council, might result in a secret agreement at the cost of French friendship.

Eleanor Rathbone, independent member of commons, asked if the French would be consulted before any agreement or understanding with Germany was formally or informally proposed which might affect the security of France or any country to which she was allied.

Chamberlain answered the Halifax visit naturally would be one of the matters discussed with Premier Camille Chauvins and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos when they visit London next week. He added "no such agreement or understanding is in contemplation."

France's allies in central and eastern Europe include Poland and Czechoslovakia, where Hitler claims special interests because of large German minorities in those countries. France is also allied with Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Nazi expansion in those countries as well as Austria or Hungary might be considered a threat to French security.

SELFISH ANIMOSITY

If claims made in the report of Secretary Charles W. Holman, of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation, are to be believed, the dairy industry of the United States is so determined to eliminate the competition of oleomargarine that it does not hesitate to stoop to absurd misrepresentation and unscrupulous use of political and lobbyist influence.

The report declares that production of oleomargarine during the first eight months of 1937 decreased 10,000,000 pounds under the same period in 1936, while sales of creamy butter for the same months increased approximately 19,000,000 pounds. This change is attributed to a decrease in the average difference in price of the two products from 21 to 20.3 cents per pound. Arguing that such results come from a slight change in price differential, the report urges efforts to secure a federal tax of 5 cents per pound on margarine, which would amount, in effect, to an interstate prohibitive tariff.

Although millions of small-income families in the United States are able, in margarine, to find a nutritive, palatable food at a cost more than 20 cents per pound lower than creamy butter, the dairy interests are apparently willing to deprive them of this valuable food in order to assure to themselves a monopoly.

To gain that monopoly they would wrest from the producers of southern cottonseed one of the most important markets for their product.

The report reveals, further, a disregard for national or world well-being when it condemns reciprocal trade agreements made with other nations by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, for the sole reason that these agreements have affected, in minor degree, the export trade in butter and cheese. It fails utterly to consider that these agreements are acknowledged, by all students of world trends, to be the most effective program yet attempted to promote the cause of world prosperity and peace.

The extent to which the dairy industry will go in its attempt to discredit oleomargarine is revealed in a list of five alleged "abuses" of advertising which they attribute to the oleomargarine manufacturers. Most of these charges are false upon their face.

The first charged "abuse" is the use of color advertising to indicate that margarine has the same yellow color as butter.

As a matter of fact, it has, for the same dye is used in both. Annatto, a dye made from the pulp of the seeds of a South American tree, is used in the manufacture of 95 per cent of all creamy butter and cheese. The only time of the year when the dye is not used, is when the cattle are feeding on fresh green pasture, which provides the desired yellow color through the milk. At all other times of the year, when the animals are fed on other feeds or when the pasture is older and thus does not provide the desired coloring, the butter or cheese maker adds annatto dye in sufficient quantity to imitate the natural tint of his product when made from fresh pasture milk.

Of course the annatto dye, in the quantity used, is harmless, but it is equally harmless either in margarine, creamy butter, or cheese.

The second alleged "abuse" is the claim that oleomargarine is a satisfactory food for children. Margarine may lack certain qualities of creamy butter but it is certainly a satisfactory food product and, when the difference in price is considered, it probably provides as many calories for each cent of cost as butter.

Thirdly, it is alleged that oleomargarine is deficient in Vitamin A. This, today, is largely false. The modern method of manufacture of oleomargarine, which involves the use of skim milk, also includes the introduction of all needed Vitamin A in the finished product.

Another alleged "abuse" is advertising that oleomargarine is made from milk. As shown above, skim milk is used in its manufacture.

The final complaint of the butter interests' protests against statements that butter is kept in cold storage whereas margarine is sold fresh. There can be no denying that butter is kept in cold storage. It would be impossible to preserve its qualities by any other means.

The entire report is filled with prejudice and misrepresentation and illustrates the extent to which selfishness can go in dictating the bias and greed of an industry.

In view of its record for the year, you'd suppose the British government would let Windsor get up his own foreign policy.

SPAIN IN SOUTH AMERICA?

There is a possibility, according to an article in the December issue of the magazine Fortune, that Brazil may be the arena in the not too distant future in which the principles of democracy as exemplified by the United States and the Fascist powers of Europe will clash.

The recent Fascist coup in the South American country by which President Vargas seized control and instituted a Fascist form of government sets the stage, it is held, for a repetition in Brazil of the struggle which has been waged in Spain for the past two years.

Should there be a Brazilian revolt against the new Vargas regime, it is within the bounds of probability that the European Fascist powers, Germany and Italy, would send reinforcements to one side in the civil struggle, just as they did in Spain, under the guise of "volunteers." Should such a situation eventuate, it would be difficult for the United States to avoid becoming involved. Even if this country succeeded in keeping out of actual warfare, the economic effect of such a struggle would be far-reaching in the United States.

It is doubtful if either Italy or Germany is sincere in their public appeals for colonies. Neither country has the capital nor the patience for the long-drawn process of colonization. What they really need is already developed and easily exploitable consumers' markets. That combination is waiting in South America.

The Fascist powers have already progressed far in their drive for South American trade. Germany last year displaced the United States as the principal exporting nation to Brazil and Chile and in 1935 supplanted Great Britain as the second greatest exporter to Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela.

In addition, Germany is pushing an intensive "cultural" penetration of the South American continent. In some sections of southern Brazil the Brazilian government already has had to insist that the language of the country be taught in the schools, instead of German. Not only in Brazil, but in other Latin-American countries, German and Italian professors are supplied, without salary cost, to any school or university so desiring.

Radio propaganda is daily broadcast from German and Italian stations in the Argentine, in Brazil and Chile. Experts in the United States admit that the German broadcasts to South America are the best short wave programs on the air.

Additional significance to this penetration of the Fascist ideology is found in the fact that, except for Colombia and Bolivia, the ruling classes in all the Latin-American republics have been strongly in sympathy with General Franco and his Fascist-Insurgent cause throughout the war in Spain.

It is reported that there are between 500,000 and 700,000 green-shirt Integralistas in Brazil. Although their emblem is the Greek sigma instead of the swastika, they are brothers to the Fascist of Europe, particularly in their constantly proclaimed hatred of Communists. There is said to be a like number of Nacistas (Nazis) in Chile.

With such a situation, and with its possibilities of trouble, it is plain that the policy of the United States in regard to her sister republics to the south must feature a renewed emphasis upon the vital need of closest friendship among the countries of the American continents.

WHO GETS THE DUES?

It has been contended that, in some cases, leaders of organized labor are much more interested in the collection of dues than in advancing the material or social welfare of their working members. Certainly, the "check-off" for which such leaders are so insistent, offers corroborative evidence of this claim. The "check-off" is the system whereby the employer withholds the union dues out of every pay envelope he hands out to his employees and turns the dues over to the union officials.

Statistical evidence regarding the extent of these collections are now available from four unions connected with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

From December 1, 1935, to November 1, 1937, the studio technicians' local at Hollywood collected dues totaling $517,890, of which $198,274 was sent on to the international officers of the union at New York. The sound technicians' local, in a slightly shorter period, collected $58,333 and sent $25,119 to the New York headquarters. The film technicians' local took in $89,214 and sent on $38,859, while the photographers' local collected $86,483 and remitted $33,575.

Thus, from these four unions alone in Hollywood, approximately $300,000 was received by the officers at international headquarters.

Editorial of the Day

OLDER WORKERS CAN DELIVER THE GOODS

(From the Philadelphia Inquirer.)

Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, does not exaggerate when she says that arbitrary age limits for workers in industry and business have become "a menace and terror to thousands of family breadwinners."

These men and women with a touch of gray in their hair want work, not charity. They feel they still have a right to a place in the activities going on around them and they have shown that length of years is not necessarily a bar to efficient service. It more often connotes valuable experience, steadiness and devotion to their jobs.

A recent study of 144 skilled workers on WPA projects in seven cities is cited by Miss Perkins in proof of this contention. Those receiving the higher grades for quality of work were also in the higher-age brackets. The average age of those graded as "excellent" was 47 years plus. The average age of those accounted "inferior" was 41 years.

But how about the quantity as well as the quality of the older workers' production? The survey showed that "the older men tended to produce more than the younger men."

There are a few bright spots in the industrial picture which suggest the dawning of a better day for those workers no longer young. The average age of United States Steel employees was recently reported as 40, with those between 55 and 60 slightly outnumbering those between 20 and 25. According to Walter B. Pitkin, the average age of automobile workers is rising and in some divisions preference is given to those over 40 for the handling of multiple-operation machines.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THESE POWER CONVERSATIONS WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. In a struggle as intense as the one now in progress between the Right and Left wing presidential advisers, no secret keeps very long. Too many people are too personally interested in the struggle's outcome, on which will depend the whole administration approach to the problem of the depression. Therefore, the real story of the recent presidential conferences with utility executives, which marked the first round of the struggle, is already on its way through the administration's whispering galleries.

The conservative White House advisers hoped the conferences would be the first step on the road to an administration peace with the utilities companies. They had strongly urged conciliation on the President on the double grounds that a peace with the utilities would soothe the present panic fears of business, and that it would encourage the utilities themselves to spend hundreds of millions of business-stimulating dollars on construction work.

Therefore, three things stick out of the real story of the conferences like so many sore thumbs: 1. The President made no peace offer to the utilities executives. A peace program was brought down by at least one of the utilities executives, Wendell L. Willkie, of the Commonwealth and Southern Company. And although the reliable program involved such concessions as a general write-off of $1,400,000,000 in the national utilities capitalization, and future acceptance of the President's "prudent investment" theory of rate-making, the President seemed to pay little or no attention to it.

2. The President showed considerable time to lecturing the utilities men, blaming them for the irresponsible error, and arguing that, in spite of the government competition sponsored by TVA and the other things which have upset the utilities business, there was no excuse in the world for their hesitant attitude toward new investment.

3. The first and most important of the conferences—that with Mr. Willkie—must have been downright funny. The utilities man, rather naturally, went to it hoping to see an olive branch or so waved in his direction from the White House. But when the reliable program involved such concessions as a general write-off of $1,400,000,000 in the national utilities capitalization, and future acceptance of the President's "prudent investment" theory of rate-making, the President seemed to pay little or no attention to it.

Mr. Willkie thought the utilities could do in the next year. Mr. Willkie replied that he thought $1,200,000,000 was a fair guess, but added that, unless the utilities companies were convinced that the administration was no longer hostile, the guess would have to be around $1. Mr. McNinch then revised Mr. Willkie's guess to $1,500,000,000.

The President wanted to know just what percentage of the total power produced in this country came from publicly owned plants. Mr. Willkie thought 12 per cent. Mr. McNinch said 10. Finally, the President asked what percentage of the population could be served by publicly owned power plants. Mr. Willkie thought 22 per cent. Mr. McNinch said 18.

LECTURES UTILITIES Taking the McNinch figures as his text, the President proceeded to his lecture, which must be taken as the key to his attitude on the importance of conciliating business until evidence to the contrary is produced. In effect, he accused the utilities companies of indulging in a foolish and untimely sit-down strike. He said roundly that the great majority of the utilities in the country were not and could not be affected by the government competition which they cried out against. He ridiculed their argument that, because of the threat of government competition, they could not secure funds for the needed new construction. He did not spare the corporate peculiarities of the utilities business which provoked the holding company act.

To all this, Mr. Willkie replied that the reasonableness of the utilities' attitude was not the important question. He argued in his turn that the attitude that he could only be cured by an adjustment in the relations between the companies and the federal government, and that, in view of the advancing depression, some adjustment was vital.

He then presented his peace program. Its first two points were concessions, smaller than the critics of the utilities have wanted, but larger than the utilities have been willing to make hitherto. First, he suggested that the utilities accept without dispute all the charges of write-ups in their capitalization preferred up to the present by the Federal Trade Commission. Since the write-ups charged amount to about $1,400,000,000, this was, in effect, a suggestion of a capital write-off of that amount. Second, he proposed that the present capitalization having been adjusted in this fashion, all increases in the rate base by new investment be hereafter calculated on the "prudent investment" system, rather than by "reproduction cost" as in the past.

The concessions he asked for in return were, first, that the death sentence clause of the holding company act should be modified so that, while all intermediate holding companies would be eliminated from the utilities structures within three years, the top holding companies would still be left in control of their operating properties.

WANTS CHANGE IN TVA SET-UP And, second, he asked that a number of changes be made in the administration of the TVA, all intended to minimize the threat of government competition with the private companies, to remove the inequities charged to government competition by the private companies and to insure the utilities an opportunity to sell the existing properties when public ownership of distribution lines is desired.

The President listened to the program in silence, and made no special comment on it after it had been presented. The meeting broke up with pious hopes on both parts that some agreement might be reached, but without any concrete step of any sort in that direction.

The second conference, with Floyd L. Carlisle, of the Consolidated Edison, ended with Mr. Carlisle professing satisfaction in his talk with the President and promising to try to start a construction program with his company's funds, but actually it was not much different from the first.

NEW YORK—Stepping from the famous Zephyr train at Chicago Union station, I noticed a gentleman making off with my briefcase. The last time that happened to me was in Constantinople, where, upon entering the station, I saw a lady accompanied by a porter who carried my grip. There is no baggage-checking department in Constantinople's depots; parcels are left with the restaurant keeper. In Turkey I simply grabbed my property. In Chicago I had to fight for it and prove to a railroad cop that it was mine. But the thief was not arrested, which I thought rather odd.

The strangest criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's policy I have heard is that it is un-American. A man told me that Herr Schacht was insisting not long ago with Adolf Hitler that the chancellor-Fuehrer had made a mistake with his anti-Jewish policy. "You hurt the economic fabric of the country by eliminating people who are better businessmen than the Germans," said the minister of economic affairs.

"They are not better businessmen," replied Hitler. "Yes, they are," came back Dr. Schacht, "and I can prove it to you."

The two men walked out together and stopped at a cigar store. "Give me a box of matches," said Schacht to the tobacconist. The man handed over the desired article.

"How much?" asked the doctor. "Five pfennigs," came the answer. "I don't want these matches. Haven't you got some with the sulphur on the other end?"

"Sulphur on the other end? No, I haven't any with sulphur on the other end, sonny!"

Hitler and Schacht walked out and a few blocks further entered a tobacco shop run by a Jew. "Matches," said Schacht.

"Here you are," said the merchant. "Five pfennigs." "I don't want this kind," Dr. Schacht remarked again. "I want

By Air Line.

Reference, in the daily paragraph quotation from The Constitution of fifty years ago, to a party which "left for Athens by Air Line," drew forth some interesting reminiscences and a transportation in Georgia in past years.

The Air Line referred to was the Air Line Railway, later known as the Richmond and Danville and today a part of the Southern Railway. The train the particular party used ran from Atlanta to Lula, where they changed to the then Northern Railway for the trip from Lula to Athens. That line now is also part of the Southern system.

The Old,

"Air Line Bell."

There was an accommodation train known as the "Air Line Bell," which was popular with the traveling public for many, many years. When first put on the schedule it ran from New Holland to Atlanta, a distance of 53 miles. Later its run was extended to Toccoa.

Leaving the terminus of its run at New Holland in the early morning, the train always stopped at Buford so passengers could get breakfast there. On the daily return trip, in the afternoon, it again stopped at Buford for supper.

Everybody on the line used to come to Atlanta by the "Bell" to do a day's shopping and return in the afternoon.

There hasn't been any use to continue the Air Line Bell since the advent of good automobiles and good roads.

Wonder what transportation conditions will be fifty years hence? If the change is as drastic as the last fifty years has brought forth, it'll be a strange world.

Those Depot

Restaurants.

Those train stops for meals, such as at Buford, are an experience unknown, of course, to a generation that, traveling, subsists on hamburgers and soda pop, curb service, at a wayside gasoline station.

The trains used to pull up at a supper stop in the early dusk and, before the wheels had stopped turning, a negro in almost white would be standing in the depot restaurant door swinging a great and noisy bell.

There was a rush from each coach to the restaurant and practically everyone would order the regular meal, all ready to serve.

Soup and red ham and chicken and thick steak and potatoes and beans and squash and rutabagas and hominy grits and gravy and hot biscuits and corn bread and apple pie and pudding and cheese and coffee and half a dozen other items.

Eat as fast as we could because the train didn't wait for laggards. But the wise ones kept an eye on the conductor, at his own table in the corner. The train couldn't go without him so it was safe to stay at your own table until he began to move.

Such meals. There were station restaurants famous all over the country. Not excluding Durand's at the old union depot in Atlanta. Upstairs over the newsstand.

How Eating

Habits Change.

The life expectancy of the average man or woman, of today is largely due to a reduction in the amount of food consumed. Certainly digestions of 1937 don't have to carry more than a fraction of the burden imposed in the not-so-gay nineties.

The amount of food one man ate for breakfast, in those days, would feed a family all day, today. And he ate still greater quantities for midday dinner. Then really did his stuff the evening meal.

It's a wonder to me they survived as long as they did. And yet, for all the quantity, the cost of living wasn't so great, by a long shot. You could buy a meal including practically everything on the menu at Durand's, in 1899, say, for half a dollar.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, November 26, 1912: "Another arrest yesterday followed the sensational charges of attempted 'white slavery' made by Genevieve Goodwin against members of the Metropolitan Musical Comedy company, when T. J. Ponder, a financier of the show, was arrested upon a federal warrant by Jailer J. T. Golden as Ponder walked into the Tower to visit the imprisoned actor folk."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Saturday, November 26, 1887: "The weather bureau promises a clear day and a dry ground today for the second grand contest in Atlanta over the prohibition question. It is universally hoped that the signal man may be truthful this time. Two years ago, at the election—and the first—the day was bitter cold. Overcoats and fires alone kept people from freezing; but this year the signal man says umbrellas, overcoats and flannels will be out of order."

Start of Harvard.

In 1636 the general court of Massachusetts Bay colony provided for establishment of a school at Cambridge, the first institution of higher learning in the English-speaking colonies. It became, three years later, Harvard College, which often is erroneously called the oldest American university. When Harvard was founded, the University of Mexico was already nearly a century old.

The Surest Defense Against a Bully Is to Show Him You Are Ready for the Worst

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Ambassador Bryce once described Americans as patient and long-suffering people who would endure much rather than exert themselves to mend matters. He could have said as much of all people everywhere. Only the quarrelsome bully and the person who hates mankind carry chips on their shoulders and turn upon offenders in quick and murderous rage.

Other men are slow to strike back. Because of physical or spiritual laziness, love of peace or plain cowardice, they will endure injustice and even abuse without recourse to violence. Only when resentment or desperation overcomes discretion do they forget family and fortune and risk death itself rather than endure more.

So when we say that Germany, Italy and Japan are willing to fight while other nations are not, the statement is not literally true. The Italian and Japanese soldiers now dying in foreign lands did not fight willingly. They obeyed a command rather than be shot for disobedience. And doubtless millions of Germans, Italians and Japanese would turn against their leaders if they dared.

The truth is not that Germany, Italy and Japan are willing to fight while other nations are not, but that the rulers of these lands are willing to make their people fight and die, while the free people of the England, France and America are not willing to fight and die in a cause they do not understand.

Therefore the three Fascist nations, having formed an alliance, are grimly and fearlessly engaged in taking what they desire. They talk of fighting Communists, but their chief target is England—not because they hate or fear the English, but for the same reason that bandits attack a rich traveler. England has most of the earth's "valuable prizes."

To say it is no affair of ours is to be simple or childishly to close our eyes to unpleasant facts. Civilization cannot endure half-slave and half-free. It will become all one or all the other.

Would it make no difference to you if Mussolini, Hitler and the Mikado dominated the seas and backward lands in England's place? Does it make no difference whether your party or the other is in power? Does it make no difference to the great industrialist or to the English farmer whether Roosevelt or a Republican is President? Having your own kind in a place of power makes the difference between danger and security.

England has policed the world for generations. Her safety has been our safety, for we speak the same language, have the same standards of decency and feel the same love for liberty.

When England goes down, freedom goes down with her. We have war and all the false propaganda and any tricky slogans that justify it, but neither peace nor life itself is worth preserving at the price of liberty.

When the test comes, the free nations will fight. And the more they endure without showing a willingness to defend themselves, the harder it will be to save liberty without a war.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"And put in every honest hand a whip
To lash the rascals naked through the world."

Under a government and in a those who cry "states' rights" with tears in their eyes and a lump in their throat when the federal government interferes with economic processes (where a necessity can be argued at any rate) but who are indifferent to a proposed federal interference where no necessity at all can be shown.

If their hostility comes near breaking at the threat to "states' rights" in a federal child labor law, they should bleed just a little, it would seem, at the threat in a federal anti-lynching law. But who are we to try to understand such inconsistent conduct?

Perhaps we are wrong about the dying-out. Perhaps lynching is not on the decline in the south, after all, and the smaller number of cases in recent years does not promise a still smaller number or even as small a one in years to come. But even if that is so, the federal law would still be a futile and wrong way of going about a right thing.

Other things being equal, states' rights are precious things and need preserving. While certain evils are, from their very nature, interstate and can be controlled only by a federal encroachment on rights heretofore belonging to states, this column tries to be born-mind enough to accept the encroachment. There are economic evils, for example, where a state cannot act for fear of losing out in competition with other states or where action by one state would not remedy the situation at all. In such cases federal interference is mere common sense.

But there are other matters where states are perfectly able to act alone in remedying evils and where federal interference is a hateful abuse of the principle of local self-government from which "states' rights" gets its sanctions. The lynching evil is one of them.

It is one of them because what one state does against lynching is not dependent at all upon what an adjoining state does. To forbid child labor in North Carolina and permit it in South Carolina is to handicap North Carolina in competition with South Carolina by imposing a greater cost of production upon her. But to put down lynching in Georgia and neglect to put it down in Florida would not conceivably give Florida an advantage over Georgia.

A mystery to this column are states' rights as Ophelia a character?

Man of Wealth.

In 8 B.C. Gaius Maecenas died at 77, most famous patron of arts in ancient times. "Rich as Maecenas" has been a simile ever since, yet he wasn't as wealthy as a number of American millionaires.

Automobile Manufacturers Employ Increasing Percentage of Men Over 40 and 45 as the Industry Grows

Latest Reports of the Automobile Manufacturers Association Prove This

1938 Cars Make Exciting Show

AFTER several depression years, the Automobile Manufacturers Association compiled a report on the employment situation in the industry. This was in the latter half of 1935. Quickly, the developments since 1930 were these:

Five automobile companies, with employment remaining about even, showed an INCREASE OF ALMOST 20% in the number of employees over 40.

One rapidly expanding company just about DOUBLED ITS NUMBER of men over 40—although their proportion slightly declined.

One company was forced to reduce its total by 40%—but THOSE OVER 40 were reduced only 30%.

These figures are added to United States Government figures giving the status of the unskilled and semiskilled over 45 between the census years of 1920 and 1930. The percentage of increase for this decade in the rapidly expanding motor-car business was 39% for all ages—and 51.3% for men over 45.

Height of Competence and Reliability Reached at 40

The conclusions of the Association are these: Mass production does not displace older workers, but, rather, places an added value upon their experience. Machines worth thousands of dollars cannot be entrusted to men with little knowledge. And efficiency in all operations can come only with practice.

In One of the Biggest Automobile Factories, Nearly 1/3 of the Workers Are Over 40. Of course, good health is always a requisite for men over 40 to get the appreciation due them.

Better Health Gives Him Happier Outlook

Dear Life Begins: At the end of last winter, I expected to be transferred as usual to a summer assignment on an excursion boat. It's a pleasant job, though an exacting one, and when the transfer didn't come through I was very anxious because I thought my condition, sick and run-down, had been noticed. I felt dead tired all the time and my weight was down—though when I went for hospital treatment they told me nothing was basically wrong with me.

A friend of mine urged me to eat Fleischmann's Yeast to help build up my health and I began eating 3 cakes a day.

In the spring, my health had improved so much, I did get the job I'd been hoping for.

I've eaten Fleischmann's Yeast from that day to this. Not only have I gotten back pep and energy, but I've a happy outlook on life that I never thought I'd have again.

Energy Now Equal to Emergencies

Dear Life Begins: I drive a motor truck and need a lot of energy. When I was 38, my vitality seemed to drop. I tired easily, was putting on too much weight and having boils.

With the doctor's approval I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast regularly and my pep started to come back. The boils cleared up, too, and my weight came down. I no longer got winded after any special exertion.

I'm 45 now and Fleischmann's Yeast still helps keep my digestion good. I have plenty of energy for emergency calls—which sometimes mean 16-hour stretches of driving.

Dear Life Begins: The depression started me on the down-grade. I lost my position and my money, and my health threatened to break. I suffered from nervous indigestion, exhaustion and sleeplessness, and that run-down feeling that makes one despondent.

Then I started to eat Fleischmann's Yeast, three cakes a day, regularly, and gradually I noticed a change. After the first few weeks my food began to benefit me and I felt much better, too, because I was able to rest well at night.

Along with this, I recovered my morale. Now that Fleischmann's Yeast has helped me to better health, I'm sure of myself again.

NAVAL ENGINEER IS HELD IN PARIS

More Arms and Ammunition Seized in Alleged Plot on Government.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(P)—Surete Nationale agents today arrested Eugene Deloncle, a naval engineer they described as founder and head of a secret revolutionary committee preparing to overthrow the republic with a well-armed army.

At the same time General Edouard Duseigneur, retired former chief of staff of the air ministry, was indicted on a charge of "associating with malefactors." Surete agents said he was one of Deloncle's aides. Duseigneur had been described as chief of "Les Cagoulards"—the hooded ones—a band thought to be one section operating under the committee.

Sufficient Arms. Although police declined to list the complete arms seizures in the series of raids throughout Paris and the provinces, they have already disclosed captures in Paris alone sufficient to equip an army of "shock troops" of several thousand men.

Such a force, moving through the Paris sewers, armed with modern machine-guns, automatic rifles and hand grenades, would have been sufficient to attempt the quick coup d'etat the committee apparently planned to establish a monarchist dictatorship.

Surete officials disclosed the revolutionary committee planned to use natives from France's north African colonies as shock troops. Three Algerians were arrested as paid organizers. About 400 native Moroccans and Algerians in Paris were said to have belonged to the organization.

More Arms Seized. During the afternoon police raided an apartment near the war ministry, seizing a machine-gun, a dozen rifles, 15,000 cartridges and a number of cases of hand grenades.

Junior Wins Correct Posture Contest at Decatur Girl's High

Student Body Makes Final Selection in Move To Foster Poise and Grace as Aid to Attractiveness; Sophomores Place Second and Third.

Miss Eleanor Harper, a junior at the Decatur Girls' High school, this week was named "Polly Posture" in the first school contest to elect the superlative in posture.

Placed second and third were Misses Rosemary Reynaud and Ruby Mae Jameson, sophomores. The event was sponsored to create interest in more healthful and more graceful habits of standing, sitting and walking. Poise, grace and thorough understanding of the attractiveness and beauty gained by physical perfection were as important in the contest as the requirement for girls to hold "heads up" and "shoulders back."

Contestants were entered from every home room at the school and each school activity group. Final selection for first place was made by vote of the student body. To create further interest in the event the faculty entered a contestant in the person of Miss Minnie Lasseter, adjudged their most erect member.

Miss Daisy Frances Smith, principal of the Decatur Girls' High, announced yesterday that another contest would be staged again next year.

City Map Shows 600 Changes In Past 10 Years

Six hundred changes have taken place in the map of Atlanta within the last 10 years, M. Shokler, of 859 Peachtree street, N. E., representative of the Wagner map of the city, declared yesterday.

Since 1927, many new streets have come into existence while a number have been eliminated. New sections have been taken into the city, and the ward set-up has been completely revamped, he noted.

First Map in 10 Years. This year's Wagner map is the first wall map made of the city in 10 years, Shokler asserted.

In addition to listing all city streets, street car and bus lines, it contains inset maps of Buckhead, East Point, College Park, Center Hill, Hapeville, Decatur, Avondale and Scottsdale in the same scale as the city is drawn.

Shokler asserted the street index of Atlanta and Decatur is the most complete ever listed by the Wagner draftsman.

Distance Lines. "The Wagner map has index lines that represent exactly one-half a mile, and one mile circles from Five Points," he said. "Thus, the exact distance from one point to another can be easily determined."

"It has many new streets in recent subdivisions shown on a map for the first time, particularly in the Buckhead section," he declared.

The wall map measures 34 by 38 inches.

KIDNAPERS' WIVES TO BE PROSECUTED

Two Are Accused of Assaulting Federal Agents. WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(P)—J. Edgar Hoover said today that Agnes Oley and Josephine Geary, wives of two convicted kidnapers, would be arraigned tomorrow at Albany, N. Y., on charges of assaulting federal officers.

Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said the women were arrested in Albany yesterday after "creating quite a disturbance."

The women disappeared from their Albany homes November 15, he said, one day before John Oley, Percy Geary and Harold M. Crowley escaped from the Onondaga county penitentiary at Jameville, N. Y. All three were recaptured. They were awaiting outcome of an appeal from their conviction on charges of kidnaping John J. O'Connell Jr. at Albany in 1933.

BOY'S INFATUATION BLAMED IN KILLING

Murder Charge Booked Against Youth in Massachusetts Slaying.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Nov. 25.—(P)—A first-degree murder charge tonight was placed against Louis Chenaille, 21-year-old print works employee, for the slaying of Leo Lincourt, 23, companion of a married woman with whom, police said, Chenaille was infatuated.

Assistant District Attorney Govey announced the charge against Chenaille after an autopsy showed a bullet through the heart killed Lincourt. Lincourt died early today, only a few minutes after he and Mrs. Matilda Derthiaume, 33, mother of two children, returned to the latter's home from a holiday-eve dance.

Chenaille was taken into custody after the woman's 13-year-old son, Fred, telled him with a milk bottle.

Police Captain Flaherty said Mrs. Berthiaume's husband was a patient in a state hospital and declared Chenaille was infatuated with Mrs. Berthiaume and had often asked her to have her marriage dissolved so that she might wed him.

HOUSE POWER BLOC
SEEKS F. D. R. TALKRankin Charges Utilities
Are Trying To Wreck TVA Program.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(P)—Representative John E. Rankin, Tupelo, Miss., announced today a house power bloc of which he is chairman had asked for a conference with President Roosevelt "before any change is made in the administration's power policies."

He said in a statement congressional opposition was developing to "compromises" he said were being proposed to the President by utility interests.

Rankin said if Wendell L. Willkie or Floyd L. Carlisle, utility executives who conferred recently with the President, would meet him in a radio debate he would "break down by states" what he said were overcharges by utilities for electricity totaling "a billion dollars a year."

"I don't believe these utility magnates who have been fighting the President so bitterly are deceiving him now by plying around the White House," Rankin said.

He said that "talk of spending a billion dollars" for utility improvements was "bunk."

"What they want to do is to destroy the Tennessee Valley Authority and thereby wreck the administration's power program," he said.

OF COTTON SUBSIDY$130,000,000 Appropriation
Now in 'Cold Storage,' Says Georgian.

AMERICUS, Nov. 25.—The United States Department of Agriculture will be asked for an early release of $130,000,000 in cotton adjustment payments, to "start the wheels to turning down home," Congressman Stephen Pace declared in a letter received here this week by Lovelace Eve.

"While billions are being practically given away in relief," Pace's letter said, "I don't think it is unreasonable to ask that this $130,000,000 adjustment payment money be released from cold storage."

Present regulations, the Georgia congressman stated, provided that cotton farmers, to receive the 3-cent subsidy payment, must sell their cotton by June 30, 1938. "This regulation alone," he said, "will cause several million bales (of cotton) to be thrown on the market within a short period. Dumping that much cotton on the market will have a depressing effect on the price and place our farmers entirely at the mercy of the buyers."

Must Have Receipts.

Farmers who borrow on their cotton, he said, did so because they needed money to pay debts or buy necessities. Under present regulations, they must pay off their existing loans and get their cotton warehouse receipts before they may sell their cotton and obtain the 3-cent subsidy.

Because of this situation, he said, he has conferred with AAA officials and obtained a promise that an immediate study will be made to see if the regulations may be changed without further congressional action, in order to make possible an early payment of the subsidy.

Funds Appropriated.

"At the last session," said Congressman Pace, "we appropriated $130,000,000 for payment to the cotton farmers as a subsidy or adjustment, in an effort to insure them 12 cents for this year's cotton crop. But the Department of Agriculture then insisted that these payments be made only to farmers who co-operated in the 1938 cotton program. That meant it cannot be paid until after next year's crop has been planted and checked. The department tells they have little hope of making these payments before next August."

"This means $130,000,000 will be tied up for months in the United States Treasury while farmers are either in great need of it now or could use it to advantage. I have appealed to the department for a transfer of these future payments so the farmer can use this money now—for necessities, in paying debts, or starting farm operations next year, with the interest rate of not over 3 per cent. This would enable landlords, tenants and share-croppers to make final settlements. It will save foreclosures. It will buy fertilizer, seed and supplies indispensable next spring. It will turn millions into trade channels now while merchants are discouraged."

RAIN IS FORECAST FOR ATLANTA TODAY

Rain and slightly warmer temperatures will head Atlanta's weather program today, the Weather Bureau predicted yesterday.

"The mercury will range between 45 and 56 degrees and rain is expected in Atlanta and the north and central portions of Georgia," the forecaster said. Yesterday's extremes were 44 and 52 degrees.

A disturbance off the Louisiana coast is driving the rain this way, the Weather Bureau announced. Two small craft warnings were issued yesterday, one for the Atlantic and the other for the Gulf of Mexico coast.

Central Figures at Atlanta Club Thanksgiving Fete

Co-operation and service were keynotes Tuesday as members of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees of the city hall, fete city officials. Shown, left to right, are M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of schools, toastmaster; Mrs. Mabel Terry, president of the organization, and Mayor Hartsfield.

Women Employees Turn the Tables
At Fete for City's 'Tyrant' BossesMayor Hartsfield Calls for Co-operation in 'Performing Maximum Service for People of Atlanta' at Thanksgiving Dinner of Atlanta Club.

Mayor Hartsfield's call for co-operation by city employees with the administration in "performing a maximum service for the people of Atlanta" mingled Tuesday with levity as municipal department heads were fete by members of the Atlanta Club, organization of women employees of the city hall.

The annual Thanksgiving dinner tendered by club members to the officials was held at the West End Woman's Club on Cascade road.

Called to Task.

"Bosses" were called to task, speakers facetiously branding them "tyrants." The tables were turned temporarily, and the "bosses" were the underlings, but it didn't last long, and everyone, including the "victims," enjoyed the event.

M. E. Coleman, assistant superintendent of schools, was toastmaster. Mrs. Mabel Terry, club president, directed the affair. Mayor Hartsfield was made the John Alden of a skit effect in which Coleman was Governor Bradford; Mayor Pro Tem I. Glover Hailey was Elder Brewster; Mrs. Terry was Priscilla, and Earl Landers, tax assessor; Mayor Hartsfield and Landers composed a quintet of alleged song birds.

Table Decorations.

Table decorations were prepared under the direction of the luncheon committee, headed by Miss Carletta Babb.

Other members of the luncheon committee were Miss Alice Berry, Mrs. Anna Dickson, Mrs. Grace Moon, Miss Frances Pickett and Miss Mabel Prince.

F. D. R. Relishes
Turkey Despite
Tooth Troubles

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(P)—President Roosevelt carved a 16-pound turkey today and enjoyed some of it himself despite his tooth troubles of the past 10 days.

He spent the day quietly indoors, but Mrs. Roosevelt went out briefly this morning for a horseback ride with her 15-year-old cousin, Elizabeth Henderson, of Stamford, Conn., a student who is living in the executive mansion this winter.

The White House dinner followed the pattern of thousands over the country which began with a blessing and ended with pumpkin pie. There were oysters, chestnut dressing and cranberry sauce.

The President joked with his 5-year-old granddaughter, Sara, who was permitted to sit up at the table with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt Jr., only Roosevelt son and daughter-in-law able to be present.

Others who shared the turkey—a gift of the Resettlement Community at Arthur Dale, W. Va.—were Miss Henderson and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, the President's personal secretary.

In marked contrast to the quiet White House Thanksgiving was the merry party for 170 guests given by Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean at her rambling estate, Friendship, on Wisconsin avenue.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 25.—(P)—Tonight, 52 hours after her birth by a posthumous caesarean operation, a tiny baby girl—three pounds, 12 ounces—was reported by Mercy hospital attendants to be "getting on just fine."

Physicians said the infant, whose 19-year-old mother, Mrs. Robert E. Helms, died three to five minutes before Baby Helms was born, was given a "fair chance" to live by the attending physicians, who said it was rare for a baby born under such circumstances to live more than a few minutes.

Men Rarely Buy Them for Themselves—Solid-Color Flannels
Vie With Silks and Rayons in Luxurious-Looking Patterns

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD
Editor Men's Fashions.

It's perhaps a little early to be talking about Christmas, but it's all right to seize the opportunity presented by a column on lounging robes and dressing gowns to point out that they make excellent holiday gifts. Somehow, a man rarely gets around to buying a robe for himself, just as he doesn't often buy cuff links, or jewelry, or a traveling case for himself, although there are few men who don't want those things.

GIRL ATHLETE CRIES
'LIES' IN DEATH QUIZMaterial Witness in Slaying of Child Is Free Under $500 Bond.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(P)—Mrs. Chester Phillips, the former Marie Kibler, 1936 women's Olympic team gymnast, denounced today as "a terrible bunch of lies" the information Mayor Wilson said he had in an affidavit and on which he would base charges against her and Miss Mary K. O'Connor, held in the death of five-year-old Nancy Glenn.

The mayor said yesterday that the charges have no direct connection with the child's death last Labor Day. The affidavit, he said, was from a waiter who worked at a municipally-operated children's camp last summer at which both Mrs. Phillips and Miss O'Connor were employed as counselors.

The mayor said the charges would be based on an alleged occurrence at the camp.

"There is absolutely no foundation" for the information the mayor claims to have, Mrs. Phillips, a bride of eleven weeks, declared.

The attractive girl gymnast is free under $500 bail as a material witness in the Glenn case. She revealed at a hearing Tuesday that Miss O'Connor, 19-year-old physical education student, admitted to her she caused the child's death.

Coroner Charles Hersch said he would reopen his investigation of the death next week.

BIBB COUNTY FILES ACTION TO RECOVER STATE SCHOOL FUND

$60,000 Sought Under Contention of Census Basis for Appropriation.

A court fight to collect approximately $60,000 in state appropriations was under way yesterday in Fulton superior court as Bibb county public school officials filed mandamus proceedings against the State Board of Education and Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools.

The action seeks to collect state appropriations on a census basis rather than on the new teacher-unit basis, according to Wallace Miller, vice president of the Bibb County Board.

"Equalizing" Act. Miller is a member of a special committee named to contest the method of payment approved by the last legislature under its "equalizing" act making seven-month payments on teacher-unit basis.

Mandamus proceedings were launched Wednesday night after the courthouse had closed for the Thanksgiving holiday. Attorneys for the Bibb county board presented their petition to Judge John D. Humphries at his home Wednesday night. Judge Humphries set a hearing of the petition for 9 o'clock Monday morning, December 6.

Bibb county school officials contend the board is entitled to payment under the old census basis because its charter was approved by the general assembly before adoption of the state constitution of 1877.

Four Counties Involved. Bibb, Richmond, Chatham and Glynn counties contested the new "equalizing" plan of payment, but the Bibb county board is the first to take court action.

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans ruled last summer that Bibb county is justified in collecting under the old census basis. After Bibb collected on that basis for the month of October, the State Board of Education adopted a resolution to pay all counties on the new basis, the petition sets out.

C. Baxter Jones and Harry S. Strozier represent Bibb county in the proceedings.

NAVY PLANES HERE

Ships En Route to Army Football Classic.

Airlanes above Atlanta reverberated to the roar of U. S. navy planes yesterday winging their way to Philadelphia for the Army-Navy football classic tomorrow. Several flights of planes landed at Candler field during the day. Field authorities said that several dozen more flights of planes will pass over Atlanta today. A flight of six planes, led by Lieutenant MacDonald, of the U. S. naval air station at Pensacola, are to take off early this morning after stopping over at Candler field last night.

GREEN URGES CUT IN PROPERTY TAX

AFL President Replies to Suggestion of Reduction in Labor Rates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(P)—William Green suggested a reduction in local real estate taxes today to stimulate home-building.

The American Federation of Labor, president, proposed that federal authorities call in representatives of state governments to work out a co-ordinated program. This, in effect, was Green's reply to a suggestion that building labor take a cut in hourly wages in return for a guarantee of year-round employment. Green reported recently that President Roosevelt had said the suggestion was worthy of consideration.

J. W. Williams, president of the AFL building trades department, said the members of his unions would be glad to work for less each hour in return for more work each year—but it would be impossible to guarantee a yearly income.

For instance, he said, a carpenter might work for a dozen different contractors each month. That fact, alone, he said, would make an income guarantee impractical.

Meantime, it was learned, building supply men had informed the administration that their attitude toward a reduction of prices, also suggested at a recent White House conference, would depend on labor's final answer.

The administration's new housing program, as tentatively outlined several days ago, calls for a drive to build homes costing $6,000, or less for workingmen.

Atlanta Girls Active in Work At State School

Atlanta girls this year are playing an increasingly active and important role in nearly every phase of student activity at Georgia State College for Women, a survey of students disclosed yesterday. Fifteen daughters of Atlanta families hold positions of leadership and responsibility in fields of undergraduate endeavor. School policy attracted Miss Sue Thomason, regarded as a student leader since her registration four years ago. Today, she is president of the senior class, a member of the student council, and a member of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet. Following closely in her footsteps are Miss Cohn Bowers, treasurer of the junior class, and Miss Alice McDonald, recently elected vice president of the sophomore class.

Each of the undergraduate publications is headed by an Atlanta girl. Miss Lillian Caldwell is editor of the Colonnade, undergraduate newspaper, but finds time to be an active member of the student council and the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

A girl who has made a record in literary work is Miss Mary Kethley, who in her senior year is editing the Corinthian, quarterly magazine, and acting as managing editor of the Colonnade. In addition, she is a member of the Literary Guild and an officer of the Y. W. C. A. cabinet.

Miss Mary Bartles, a junior, is editor of the Spectrum, college yearbook, and handles all the art work for this publication as well. A freshman who has already made a place for herself in the student government is Miss Marjorie Edwards, a member of the freshman council.

Other Atlantans have been leaders in dramatics, advertising, chemistry, and international relations.

Power Company To Co-operate in Removal.

Georgia Power Company co-operation in a drive to remove street cars from Piedmont avenue was promised Wednesday at a conference between company officials and Councilman John A. White, fifth ward.

Executives of the company will initiate a study of the proposal to substitute buses for cars at once, White announced.

"The change will cost approximately $150,000, but I believe it will be done," White added. "The company study will include several alternative routes and comparative cost calculations."

New Housing Program to Provide For Low Income Group in Nation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(P)—The new housing program being formulated in an effort to stimulate business is based on the belief that there is a vast, untapped market for new homes.

The market, it is explained, is that segment of the population with low incomes, or with little money in the bank.

Students of housing have estimated that approximately 80 per cent of American families have incomes of less than $2,500 a year while private building in the past has been limited almost entirely to families with incomes above that figure.

Low-Income Group.
The aim is to make it easier for the low-income group to acquire houses.

The Federal Housing Administration now will insure a mortgage covering up to 80 per cent of the value of a home. For example, to build a $5,000 home the prospective owner, in order to secure FHA financing, must make a down payment of 20 per cent, or $1,000. The rest, based on a 20-year loan, may be paid off at a rate ranging from $29.71 a month for the first year to $25.76 a month for the 20th year.

President Roosevelt has not disclosed all his views of how the FHA financing should be changed, but has said he favored increasing the insured mortgage total to 90 per cent.

Down Payment.
If this were done, the home builder, who at present must put up $1,000 for FHA financing, of a $5,000 home, would be required to make a down payment of only $500.

Some congressional leaders have indicated Mr. Roosevelt also has in mind a possible reduction of interest to 4 or 3 1/2 per cent. This would result in slightly lower monthly payments. The present FHA rate is 5 per cent and, of the first month's payment of $29.71, on a $4,000, 20-year loan, $16.67 is for interest.

Some opposition has been expressed in building and mortgage lending fields to raising the percentage of FHA insurance.

The recent housing conference here sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce made no expression on this subject when it listed things it thought might be done to stimulate building.

It was learned, however, that the problem was considered by a committee, which decided to take no action because of the variance of opinion among those attending. Those favoring increased insurance said it would produce a sharp upsurge in building by opening up FHA financing to thousands who lacked the money to make the present down payment. Others said many "poor risks" would buy houses, with possibly unpleasant results.

Under the present FHA program about $1,000,000,000 in mortgages on 250,000 homes has been insured. The agency has had to take over only 54 houses, of which 21 have been sold at a net loss of $10,544, or one one-thousandth of 1 per cent of the total financing. Against this it has collected over $10,000,000 in mortgage insurance premiums.

On another occasion, Routsos told Ellis, Lamar Bird, night manager at the delicatessen, had warned Patrolman Scott to leave things alone, and that Scott had replied, "I'll get even with you." Another instance of the officer taking cigarettes without paying for them was related by Arthur Mullinax, Ellis said.

Mrs. Hyman Morris Succeeds Mrs. Zaban

Mrs. Hyman Morris officially succeeded Mrs. Mandle Zaban as chairman of the business and professional division of Hadassah at the recent meeting. Mrs. Zaban resigned because of her health but retains the post of representative to the afternoon group and her place on the board of the evening division. Miss Sarah Cohen was elected vice chairman and Miss Rose Goldstein, corresponding secretary.

Miss Sarah Gershon and Miss Helen Seft, program chairmen for November, presented a program with skits, both serious and humorous. Mrs. H. Urham gave a Hebrew lesson and a resume of the meaning of the Chanukah, the feast of the candles. Six girls danced the Palestine folkdance, the Hora, and sang Hebrew songs, and the entire membership sang a round in Hebrew words to the familiar old song, "Brother James." Mrs. R. M. Travis gave highlights of the convention at Atlantic City and Miss Pearlman impersonated a friend in Palestine.

The chairman's table was decorated with a model ocean liner, and the surrounding cellophane waves, covered individually be-ribboned packages of refreshments. Travelogues, posters, pictures of Palestine and Hadassah activities decorated the walls.

The chairman announced that in lieu of the scheduled cultural meeting slated for November, the division is taking advantage of the lecture by Dr. Joachim Prinz, Jewish leader, who speaks Monday, at the A. A. synagogue on Washington street, and comes to Atlanta under the auspices of the B'nai B'rith organization of Atlanta and the A. A. Synagogue Brotherhood. Dr. Prinz will speak on "The Downfall of German Jewry and Its Effect on the World."

Fourteen new members were reported by Miss Rae Miles, membership chairman, who requests that new members be reported as soon as possible. The slogan is, "Every Member Bring a Member," and the drive is on to add 50 new members this year.

Mrs. Sam E. Levy is representative from the afternoon group to the business group and Miss Ida May Goldstein represents the Junior Hadassah group to the business group and Miss Sarah Gershon is representative to the junior group and Mrs. Zaban is representative to the afternoon group. The next meeting will be held the third Monday of December.

Mr. Head is the youngest son of Mrs. Ella Head, of Decatur, and the late Dr. Johnson Lee Head, of Tallapoosa. The couple will reside at 1004 Clairmont avenue, Decatur.

Miss Elizabeth Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pozz Johnston, of Decatur, became the bride of John Chester Newsome at 4 o'clock yesterday at the home of the bride's parents on Ponce de Leon place, assisted by Rev. J. W. O. McKibben, of the First Methodist church, officiating.

The improvised altar at one end of the living room was banked with palms and ferns with seven-branched candelabra and baskets of white caryophylls.

Mrs. Ralph Greer and Miss Doris Franklin presented a program of appropriate music for the occasion and Miss Emerie Jackson and Freeman McMichael lighted the tapers.

Mrs. M. E. Peavy, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Her gown was of steel blue alpaca with a high scalloped neckline and short sleeves. She carried navy accessories and her shoulder bouquet was of pink roses and snapdragons. Miss Jane Middleton, junior bridesmaid, wore London tan velvet with a nosegay of pastel flowers and little Marjorie Johnston, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl. She wore blue velvet and carried a basket of pink roses. Hubert Johnston, the bride's nephew, ring bearer. The bride entered with her father by whom she was given in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Julius Herren. The bride wore an ensemble of bottle-green crepe and velvet. Her hat was an off-the-face model of green velvet with a veil and she carried matching accessories. Her bouquet was of bride's roses and swainsons.

Mrs. Johnston, mother of the bride, wore wine crepe with a shoulder bouquet of talisman roses. Mrs. Julia Newsome, mother of the groom, wore black alpaca with a shoulder spray of talisman roses. A reception followed the wedding ceremony. The lace-covered table in the dining room held a three-tiered wedding cake embossed in roses as its central decoration. Silver candelabra held yellow tapers and yellow caryophylls were placed at either end of the table.

Mrs. Julia Herren kept the bride's book and assisting in the dining room were Misses Ellen Johnston, Mary Lou Welch, and Lucy Williams.

Among the out-of-town guests were Rev. and Mrs. M. E. Peavy, of Ocala; Mrs. Julia Newsome and Miss Ruth Newsome, of Stapleton; J. W. Hobbs, of Stapleton; Mr. and Mrs. L. O. McWatt, of Louisville, Ga.; and Miss Ruby Gwyn, of Bremen, Ga.

Guests included members of the bride's party and out-of-town guests here for the wedding.

Another affair yesterday honoring Miss Brown and Mr. Hope was the aperitif party at which Mr. and Mrs. Chris Irby III were hosts, the party preceding the Tech-Georgia freshman football game. Miss Ethel Erwin Makes Debut At Piedmont Driving Club Dance

The highlight of the Thanksgiving social calendar was the tea-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Evans Aurel Erwin entertained yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club at which they introduced their daughter, Miss Ethel Erwin, popular member of the 1937-38 Debutante Club, to society's married and unmarried contingents.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed in the spacious ballroom, where the guests were received by the hosts and honor guest, the gay decorations featuring a crimson and green motif. Palms, evergreens and foliage plants banked the corners of the room with pedestal baskets filled with long-stemmed red roses arranged in front of the colonial posts which were entwined with smilax and graced at the top by huge bows of red cellophane. The ceiling was studded with illuminated red stars that shed a rosy glow over the festive scene.

The debutante and her parents stood before the wide fireplace at the far end of the room where innumerable bouquets and baskets of flowers sent the honor guest were arranged in semi-circular effect.

Mrs. Erwin wore a handsome gown of black velvet with a shoulder bouquet of deep purple orchids.

Miss Erwin's gown was fashioned of oyster-colored brocade satin and was trimmed with full skirt that reached to a short train length. The bodice of the becoming gown featured a basque effect with a pointed scalloped neckline. She wore gold-colored slippers and her only ornament was a gold antique locket worn on a slender chain of pearls and amethysts, a valued heirloom in the family of the debutante's mother. A cluster of delicately tinted orchids was worn on her left shoulder and she carried a fan-shaped bouquet of orchids, parma violets and valley lilies, sent by a group of close friends.

The buffet tables were arranged on either side of the room and graced in the center by plateaus of red roses and narcissi. At either end of the tables were silver candelabra holding burning red tapers. Punch was served in the foyer from bowls embedded in richly colored fruits with the red shades predominating.

The party reached a colorful climax when the dancers participated in the popular "Red Apple" dance with Alfred Barilli Jr. calling the various numbers. An immense red apple suspended from the center of the ballroom ceiling opened and hundreds of red balls fell upon the dancers.

Miss Erwin is the only daughter of her parents and she is listed among the season's most popular debutantes. Throughout the fall she has been honor guest at innumerable parties assembling the Debutante coterie and an admired figure attending the social gatherings given at the clubs. She is a representative of prominent southern families and bears the name of her mother, who before her marriage was Miss Ethel Armstrong, of this city.

Miss Ethel Erwin Makes Debut At Piedmont Driving Club Dance

The highlight of the Thanksgiving social calendar was the tea-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Evans Aurel Erwin entertained yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club at which they introduced their daughter, Miss Ethel Erwin, popular member of the 1937-38 Debutante Club, to society's married and unmarried contingents.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed in the spacious ballroom, where the guests were received by the hosts and honor guest, the gay decorations featuring a crimson and green motif. Palms, evergreens and foliage plants banked the corners of the room with pedestal baskets filled with long-stemmed red roses arranged in front of the colonial posts which were entwined with smilax and graced at the top by huge bows of red cellophane. The ceiling was studded with illuminated red stars that shed a rosy glow over the festive scene.

The debutante and her parents stood before the wide fireplace at the far end of the room where innumerable bouquets and baskets of flowers sent the honor guest were arranged in semi-circular effect.

Mrs. Erwin wore a handsome gown of black velvet with a shoulder bouquet of deep purple orchids.

Miss Erwin's gown was fashioned of oyster-colored brocade satin and was trimmed with full skirt that reached to a short train length. The bodice of the becoming gown featured a basque effect with a pointed scalloped neckline. She wore gold-colored slippers and her only ornament was a gold antique locket worn on a slender chain of pearls and amethysts, a valued heirloom in the family of the debutante's mother. A cluster of delicately tinted orchids was worn on her left shoulder and she carried a fan-shaped bouquet of orchids, parma violets and valley lilies, sent by a group of close friends.

The buffet tables were arranged on either side of the room and graced in the center by plateaus of red roses and narcissi. At either end of the tables were silver candelabra holding burning red tapers. Punch was served in the foyer from bowls embedded in richly colored fruits with the red shades predominating.

The party reached a colorful climax when the dancers participated in the popular "Red Apple" dance with Alfred Barilli Jr. calling the various numbers. An immense red apple suspended from the center of the ballroom ceiling opened and hundreds of red balls fell upon the dancers.

Miss Erwin is the only daughter of her parents and she is listed among the season's most popular debutantes. Throughout the fall she has been honor guest at innumerable parties assembling the Debutante coterie and an admired figure attending the social gatherings given at the clubs. She is a representative of prominent southern families and bears the name of her mother, who before her marriage was Miss Ethel Armstrong, of this city.

For the past few years the bride has made her home in Atlanta. Mr. Sheppard, formerly of McCormick, S. C., and a graduate of Clemson, is an electrical engineer with the Georgia Power Company. After a wedding trip through South Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard will make their home at 5 Barksdale drive.

Many Novel Experiences Feature Atlantan's Visit to California

By Sally Forth.

MRS. MACGREGOR FLANDERS, the former Elizabeth Irwin, is enjoying many interesting and novel experiences during her visit to California. Elizabeth is visiting her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank, the latter being the former Mary Irwin, of this city. Mr. Frank is a renowned writer, architect, teacher, artist and designer of modern furniture. He is author of "Machine Made," "Machine-Made Leisure," "Form and Reform" and "New Dimensions." He is now in the midst of writing another book and with Mrs. Frank and Elizabeth he will go to Palm Springs, California's smartest spa, to complete his manuscript.

Exhibitions of Mr. Frank's paintings attract the presence of well-known artists residing on the Pacific coast and the Frank Galleries, owned by Mr. Frank, occupy an important location on one of Los Angeles' main thoroughfares. Movie stars and other prominent figures in film circles gather frequently at the galleries for a view of the artist's works and for informal conversations.

By the way, Mr. and Mrs. Frank are the parents of an eight-month-old daughter, Pauline, whom the proud Atlanta aunt had never seen, and whose Scotch nurse is a former nurse of Shirley Temple.

Elizabeth will go from Los Angeles to Bakersfield, the original home of Laurence Tibbitt, the famous American singer, where she will visit another brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Comer. She will experience another thrill when she arrives in Bakersfield, for there she will see for the first time her young nephew, Joe Comer. Mrs. Comer is the former Martha Irwin of this city, and is considered one of California's best tennis and bridge players.

Before beginning her return trek to Georgia, Elizabeth will visit the Rufus Thayer in San Francisco. Mrs. Thayer, as you know, is the former Anna Harriet Shewmake, of Atlanta, and she and her naval officer husband are popular members of military circles in the Golden Gate city.

WHEN Nell Winslow entertained at luncheon this week for a group of debutantes she was really a guest herself, for she arrived with her guests and left with them. Nell, you know, is a member of the senior class at the University of Georgia, and classes Monday morning prevented her leaving until the eleventh hour. With her roommate, Mary Frances Yates, she motored to Atlanta in record time and arrived at the Winslow home at the same time as the honor guests.

The Winslow parties are famed for their enjoyment and beauty, and Monday's event was no exception, for the guests lingered far into the afternoon. In fact, they remained until engagements

'Sunday' Frocks and Accessories

Above, left: If you are stopping in for tea on Sunday afternoon you will want to wear this Maurice Rentner dress of new champagne wool with huge burnish gold buttons and soft suede girdle in dubonnet. Right: A refreshing new fashion note is frosty white on black. Here we have the clever application of white lace on the sleeves and girdle. A huge clip of colored stones lends sparkle.

For those who like to spend Sunday afternoon walking in the bright sunshine an ideal costume is this California rambler with jacket of rust tweed cross-barred in bright orange and yellow. It has a brown skirt. For further information concerning articles on this page, sketched in Atlanta shops, phone the Fashion Editor of The Constitution.

Hollywood Looking Glass

A costume is a hit or a miss depending upon the wearer's choice in jewelry. It is better to wear none at all than to couple sports jewelry with formal clothes or to use delicate evening things with a tailored suit.

Bette Davis, who is a connoisseur of costume jewelry, particularly likes bracelets, and has them the thing. A classic two-piece suit you can wear and love and wear some more. It's a two-toned herringbone tweed with hip-length jacket to give you that "this season" nipped-in appearance. You'll like the simplicity of it.

Things you surely have noticed: It's literally a toss of the coin whether high or low necks are smarter at present. All high necks are good. The favorite low is a V that rises high on the throat everywhere except right in front.

That, while everyone wears the 14 from the floor skirts and Schiaparelli even shows 'em at 15, this is a matter which you alone, my dear, must grapple with. Size up your appendages (with a George Jean Nathan eye). If they are neither bowed nor knock-kneed but strike a happy medium between the two, these skirts are yours, otherwise lay off and be content with the 12 or 13 inches from the floor skirts.

You're a piker if you haven't gotten a high hat yet. And you're simply lying down on your duty of taking life by the scruff of the neck and doing something with it. You have a number to choose from. A turban resembling a chimney (or vaguely resembling something out of the Congo) or just an upside down flower pot. But don't let your man of the moment (be he husband or lover) dissuade you once you have made up your mind. In fact you really mustn't let him see it until you've decided definitely to keep it. Then wear it out prepared to hold your ground.

Schiaparelli (in case you've been wondering) is Italian born. She is a sophisticate with a flair for the unusual. Tight and slender are her daytime dresses, fashioned of heavy woollens, jerseys and stunning new brocaded cloques. Characteristic of her suits are the smart jackets with amusing and eccentric fastenings and unusual blouses. She adores embroidery on the jacket fronts. Of current fashion news are her evening dresses with frank brassiere-like bodices. She favors extreme hats with all dinner and evening clothes.

For every occasion. For active sports wear she has bracelets woven of bright leather thongs and others of polished links of wood. For spectators sports, and with some street clothes, she likes her charm bracelet. Her clever little charms all tell a story and some are workable like the little motion picture camera which actually cranks.

With her most tailored suits Bette wears slim gold hoops, some of which are set with semi-precious stones and others have engraved designs. For evening she adores bracelets with plenty of flash and sparkle. She has one wide one made of alternate rows of rubies and chip diamonds, another set with uniquely faceted amber and a beaten gold bracelet set with cabachon gems which she wears with such heavy materials as black velvet.

Olivia de Havilland wears no jewelry at all during the day, but does like a slim necklace with formal clothes. Margaret Lindsay is thrilled over a multi-jeweled dog-collar she recently purchased to wear with winter formals, and no one has ever seen Ann Sheridan without her little gold earrings.

Forecast of Fashion's Trend

By JACQUELINE GREENE.

Now "when the frost is on the pumpkin" and you're "recuping" from an overindulgence of Thanksgiving festivities, you're literally holding your breath (along with your head) until the next big event in your life—Saturday's game, when Tech and Georgia clash in a gridiron battle which play-by-play will become history for a year.

There will be gorgeous girls, swarthy in softly shaggy coats, behind huge chrysanthemums, boys behind in their studies, a riotous crowd, seething with excitement behind each team, urging it on to victory.

And you, my dear, and you, despite your vivid costume, will be only an onlooker, while the mighty male will be the cynosure of all eyes (even your worst rival's). But, never mind, don't bite your lacquered nails to the quick, for remember, you're going to dress for dinner that night and definitely! And if you do not re-ensnare your lost Lothario, you might as well turn yourself over to a trip abroad, and a fawning foreigner who will bow and kiss your pale extended hand—and be satisfied you're washed up. But take heart, for in a dress of midnight blue fashioned with sequin long-sleeved jacket, you will be a knockout as a dinner companion, and later, for the dance, you'll simply shell out of the jacket and reveal a dress with a paillette heart on the bodice. Really, my dear, if you can't be cute and attractive in this, you should call for a new deal.

If you envy the glamour, the inscrutable mystery of Marlene Dietrich, then you would most certainly lean toward a model we glimpsed in an Atlanta shoppe a few days ago. Created in white or black net, it had a shirred bodice with very full skirt over a taffeta slip. Rather alluring.

Very well, your life is running too smoothly. In fact it's getting into somewhat of a rut and there you sit, like a bump on a pickle, and do absolutely nothing about it. Would you like to see yourself in a climax of brilliance? Would you like to snatch a little splendor from the stars? Then wear a constellation of rhinestones (scads 'n' scads of 'em) against a dinner dress that is astoundingly black. Heap them around your throat in chains, weight your wrists down with them. A square rhinestone might flash a bit of fire from your hand while in your hair, let gleam a rhinestone pin to hold in place that sheer black veil—and night will envy your brilliance.

Black magic for the cold pre-Christmas days you can find in a rich black antelope bag we saw the other day. It was a roomy affair and frameless, accented by twin top-handles with the new "broader base" so it can stand by itself. Crisply tailored, it will be the perfect complement to your winter town suit.

In case you're looking for a suit that will stand by you for years to come, we ran into just

Pleasant Homes

By ELIZABETH McRAE BOYKIN.

Curtain making is a big job.

"I'll never crab again," said Mrs. Pratt, "about the high prices a professional curtain maker charges. Because it's cheap, whatever the figure! I know because I've just finished making my own curtains and draperies for our living room. What a job! It's taken me weeks and I've enough empty spools to make a transcontinental train. The catch is that you can't see all the work in curtains except when it isn't there!"

"But it was worth it. . . I'll say that much now that the job's finished. And if I hadn't made them myself I'd have had to be content with ready-mades which just don't have the same style."

Many Windows.
"Our living room has walls in a light soft beige with a pink cast to it with woodwork the same color. There are eight windows which make the room seem very airy and pleasant, but cut up the wall spaces too much. So I thought the window treatment would be better in the same color as the wall. And I was right there, curtains and draperies in that same tone give a serenity to the room that I like. I got sheer white rayon for glass curtains and tinted it myself, using pink tinted with orchid dye to get the tint I wanted. It will fade but I can give it a fresh dip at each washing. (If my walls had been a more standard color I could have gotten the right toned material to begin with, which would have been a lot easier.) Then I found a rayon and cotton material in a diagonal self-toned stripe that was perfect for the draperies—the color was called monkey-skin and it's just a breath deeper than the walls. I made the sheer curtains criss-cross then had the draperies meet at the top in the center and looped back at each side in a half-parted-in-the-middle effect. The rest of the room is quite a success, too, if I do say so myself—and Oriental rug with a light ground and a rather misty pattern, upholstery in plain fabrics in the range of blue-greens, from peacock and turquoise to aquamarine. Accessories in eggshell tones."

UNCLE RAY'S Corner

A TRIP TO VERSAILLES.
Leaving Paris for a day of sight-seeing, I boarded a bus filled with tourists and went to Versailles, a city about 11 miles distant. Along the way, we stopped to visit one of the homes of Napoleon Bonaparte. There the "Little Corporal" lived with his first wife, Josephine.

The house is now a museum, and contains many relics of Napoleon. There is a blood-stained handkerchief said to have been used for a slight wound suffered in battle. There are books from Napoleon's library, and letters written as orders during battles. Last of all, as we may say, there is Napoleon's small deathbed which was brought from St. Helena. In the last years of his life, he was held a prisoner on that island, and was not able to take part in any more warfare.

Leaving Napoleon's one-time home, we soon reached Versailles, and there we saw a palace of great size. It was the palace of three French Kings, Louis XIV, XV and XVI.

The Palace of Versailles is one of the grandest ever built. The front of it is a quarter of a mile wide, and there are three stories. The rooms on the ground floor are of great size, and are decorated with marble, gold work, fine tapestries, and oil paintings. The guide said that 136 kinds of marble had been used in the building. I saw white marble and gray marble, cream-colored and brown marble, red and green marble.

On the ceiling of one room is a painting 18 yards wide and 23 yards long. It contains the figures of men and women who seem to be floating about in the clouds. The painting of this ceiling took seven years.

The so-called Hall of Mirrors (or "Galerie de Glaces") is perhaps the most famous part of the building. It is 33 feet wide and 234 feet long. The ceiling is 42 feet high.

The guide showed us a balcony, and said:

"There is where Queen Marie-Antoinette stood when the mob came and shouted for bread. The Queen said, 'If they don't have bread, why don't they eat cake?'"

"That was a strange thing to say! If the people didn't have enough money for bread, they certainly didn't have enough to buy cake."

Beauty, According To You

Posed by Jeanette MacDonald.

A New Body Rub That's Also Cologne, Sachet and Deodorant

BY LILLIAN MAE.

I've told you many times about this lovely woman who is devoted to the cause of making the beauty lives of women in this country and Europe more efficient and more effective. Now I bring you her latest "short-cut" to loveliness that every busy, modern woman will welcome—whether she be busy with office, home or social duties. This includes most of us, doesn't it?

For the maximum of daintiness and personal comfort, I can't see how any woman, when once she has tried it, can afford to be without this new sachet-cologne, which combines the qualities of a pungent eau de cologne, invigorating body-rub, fragrant body-sachet and effective deodorant, all in one. A brisk rub-down with it after your bath will cause flabbiness to disappear and lazy tissues to acquire new vigor.

There is a fine film of the superior velvety dusting powder base left on the skin, with a delicate fragrance which lingers many, many hours. In fact, this sachet-cologne serves as a perfect make-up for arms, back and legs, concealing blemishes and giving the skin a petal-smooth, powdered effect with the advantage that, having a moist base, it "stays put" instead of rubbing off as powder just will do.

The deodorizing agent employed in its manufacture assures entire freedom from perspiration odors at all times. It has, in addition, healing properties which prevent chafing and irritation, keeping the body looking and feeling soft, smooth and very fair.

Though she never sacrifices quality of her products to appearance of containers, this manufacturer does use most attractive bottles and boxes. In fact, you would expect to pay an exorbitant price for her preparations because of containers, but don't be fooled. You can well afford this sachet-cologne body-rub on even a limited budget. For, after all, it is a four-way toilet product. Even if it served only one purpose, it would still be reasonable and, I believe a necessity, when you have once tried it.

It is packaged in a tall gold-knobbed bottle, set in a very attractive box with bottle knob protruding through an opening in the top. Incidentally, if I were recipient of a bottle for Christmas, I would be sincerely pleased. Perhaps you may have on your Christmas list a person who would react in the same manner.

You may be one of the first in Atlanta to use this wonderful new preparation if you phone me at my office in The Constitution building for its name and the stores at which it may be purchased. If you do not live in Atlanta accompany your request with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DRESS IN ACCORDANCE WITH YOUR FIGURE AND TYPE.

Go ahead and shorten your skirts and never mind about salvaging the excess material so that you can let them out again in the spring! The hemline will remain stable at 13 to 15 inches from the floor through at least another season. . . . And that is the prediction of Winifred Oviette, fashion editor of Women's Wear, the psychic New York paper that keeps the merchants a step ahead of the styles.

But style is not quite everything! Miss Oviette would be the first to advise more longitude in your skirt if it is more becoming to you, for she is strongly opposed to the willy-nilly adoption of any fashion feature.

Whether or not women dress to please men, or to excite the envy of other women is beside the point in the opinion of this authority on fashions. Women today dress in accordance with figure and type, moderating style where necessary.

"The large woman especially has learned the lesson of moderation," Miss Oviette declared. "With her, style must always be a matter of compromise. No more than a decade ago the large woman seemed to have the fixed idea that a lot of trimmings disguised her size. Today the large woman knows that simple clothes of excellent cut and fabric do more for her than fuss, frills and fringe."

Lines of length, rather than russy detail, most flattering to the large woman.

If you lack confidence in your style sense, Miss Oviette gives some very valuable suggestions on the selection of your wardrobe. . . . "I should say that the clothes most flattering to the large woman are those which accent length at the center front and the center back, and which convey the impression of narrowness and length. This may sometimes be achieved by a panel which begins at the neckline, tapers toward the waist, and runs the length of the dress. There should never, never be lines running around the figure."

It will be easy to carry out this idea in the coming voyage for contrast, dark coat with the light dress, or the light coat with the dark dress, Miss Oviette said. "If the large woman wears her coat open, the effect will be very pleasing." The bloused bodice, now coming into favor, is also very becoming to the large woman.

And another thing. . . . "The large woman should be very careful never to buy clothes that are too tight," Miss Oviette said. "They make her look ridiculous." I told you so!

Your build is not the only guide to the selection of a wardrobe. Just now there is, Miss Oviette pointed out, a very definite distinction between the very tailored and the fanciful style, which is particularly apparent in evening gowns. No one, in her estimation, has ever worn the picture dress with more charm than Irene Castle McLaughlin, and no one can wear the closely fitted gown with more dash than Wallis Windsor. Study your type to avoid mistakes in your wardrobe.

"And what about these figures that are beyond the aid of these style tricks?" I asked Miss Oviette. She understood me perfectly. "Why, I should say that is a matter of diet and exercise," she replied with a twinkle.

CARELESS SLIPS IN ENGLISH A BARRIER TO FUN AND FRIENDS

EASY TO MAKE CORRECT SPEECH A HABIT

Her new confidence, her charming correct English, Jane owes to a stranger's whisper.

It was like a bolt from the blue to realize this stranger meant her when he whispered in the theater lobby: "The girl ahead has looks. But in one minute she's made three bad breaks—Like I should, disremember, those kind."

How Jane cried! But not for long. She turned her slipshod speech into a shining asset by proving the truth of the rule, "Say a new word or phrase three times and it's yours!"

Perhaps you too have made a hit with that bony—Like I should. Then, while you brush your hair or put on your stockings, say slowly, "As I should." Repeat it three times. Instead of disremember say I don't remember, for there's no such word as "disremember." For those kind say that kind.

During the day trot out these correct phrases whenever you can. Soon they'll be as natural to you as your errors were.

But, of course, you don't always have a stranger around to point out errors you don't know you make. So check your speech with a list of common mistakes. Goodness! You see you said to Chuck, "I didn't hear nothing about Tom or where he's going to. If I had have known, I would'a called him."

You rush to practice "I didn't hear anything." You say "where he's going" without the to. And you say "if I had known," without the have! Would'a is would have.

Simple, isn't it, to acquire the charming speech which gets you accepted everywhere? Our 40-page booklet, "Common Errors in English," tells how to check mistakes, gives correct forms.

Send 15c for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
I am in love with a boy who says he loves me but for three years I have been going with him and he has never mentioned the subject. Only reason I know is that his mother is living and his wife would have to go there which he wouldn't like. I can't sit and wait all the time without knowing anything. I'm not in a rush to get married, but I would like to know his intentions for the future. Would it be all right for me to ask him what they are or should I sit steady and let the boat rock along as it has rocked for three years?
BLUE EYES.

ANSWER:
Yes, it will be all right for you to ask the boy to speak his piece, tell you what's up his sleeve concerning your future. He's utterly selfish or he would have explained his situation to you. Three years of close friendship warrants such a confidence and if he doesn't give it, then it's all right for you to jimmy it out of him.

Incredible that a boy will go on and on pre-empting a girl's time, absorbing her interest, sponging on her youth without so much as a hint to where it may lead. He knows that marriage is the goal of every normal girl and that if he cannot lead her to it, he should be good sport enough to retire and give her a chance to find a lad who can and will. But the selfish ones are afraid that putting the facts on the line will cost them their peace and leave the girls guessing. Of course a canny maiden knows how to interpret the great silence—but what maiden is canny when she's lovesick? Three years of deferred hope whet her appetite for love and she will hang on as long as the carcass is in sight, believing, that the proposal is coming up.

This is why it's smart for a girl to keep some back-stop boy friends; she can then tell old slumthout that if he has nothing to say she will turn to the next fellow. If this doesn't make him talk, he has a chronic case of lockjaw, an incurable malady.
CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

My husband plays golf with a certain woman quite often. In fact she is the only person he plays with regularly and I am wretchedly jealous. I idolize him and it is possible that I am selfish with him, but I don't think so. Of course he assures me that there's nothing in it but there's so much in it that he would give me up rather than give up that golf game with her. I have cried, begged him to quit but on he goes and tells me I am foolish. I am on the verge of hysteria over this thing and if something isn't done quick, I am going to quit.
GOLF WIDOW.

ANSWER:
It is your husband, not you, who is selfish and about that trait of his you can do nothing. But sister, you had better snap out of that hysteria and get your wits to working before real trouble overtakes you; for the most innocent pastime that provides propinquity for a man and woman is potentially dangerous. What about learning to swing a wicked golf club or two yourself? What about suggesting that the two of them give you lessons and come home for dinner with you after the game? What about falling in with the gamblers instead of falling out with your husband? What about giving him a surfeit of the other woman?
Of course it's cruel for a man to torment his wife with another

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CRACKED LIP IS NO JOKE.

When the lip becomes cracked or fissured from chapping or in some cases from exposure to sun—a kind of sunburn of the lip—it is no joke at all. Cracked lip is painful and often very slow to heal. Unless the sufferer is isolated and gives the lip absolute physiological rest, the fissure opens again and again, no matter what remedies are applied. He or more likely she must refrain from talking as well as from laughing. The fissure will heal only when the lip is kept at rest.

Avoid moistening the lips with the tongue. Instead apply lip salve or a good lipstick or a lotion made of equal quantities of glycerin, rose water and witch hazel.

A good remedy for the prevention and relief of chapping of the lip, as well as for "cold sore" (herpes) is tincture of benzoin. It should be applied three or four times a day with a camel's hair brush and allowed to dry on the lip, to form a protective film which is soothing and favors healing.

Where a crack or fissure has resisted these simple remedies, it is well to cleanse away any lotion, salve or lipstick and dry the lip thoroughly as possible, and then paint it with a coat of flexible colodion, while holding the edges of the crack together between thumb and finger.

When carefully applied such a colodion dressing will keep the edges in apposition and bring about complete healing. Of course the colodion will stick to the dry surface only. It is useless to try to make it stick to the moist surface of the mucous membrane inside the lip. As soon as the dressing comes loose, remove it and apply another. It will not stick if the surface is oily or greasy from salve or lipstick.

Cold Sore Is Rather Hot.

At the onset of simple herpes (cold sore) on lip or around the mouth, indicated by a feeling of tension, throbbing, sensitiveness and a reddening of the spot, apply a thin layer of petrolatum (petroleum jelly) and then cover with plain talcum powder. Repeat this every hour or so whenever the powder is rubbed off or removed by the tongue.

If little vesicles or red watery pimples have already broken out it is better to avoid salves and instead touch the spot many times a day with a cotton swab. If the vesicles have ruptured, and the surface is raw or some serum exudes, clean it up with peroxide of hydrogen, dry and apply a coat of flexible colodion. Do not use any oil or salve at this stage.

Herpes zoster (commonly known as shingles) may appear over the course of any sensory nerve, and requires medical care. Proper medical treatment will obviate much unnecessary suffering from pain. Except the exhausting effect of the pain occurring in severe cases, there is no great danger or serious consequences to be feared, and no basis for the superstition that the shingles is fatal if it goes entirely around the body.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Nephritis.

What advice or suggestions have you for a person aged 54 who has chronic nephritis? (C. A.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on Nephritis. (Bright's disease.)

Pain.

Can you recommend a mask to wear while painting, as a preventive against lead poisoning? (J. S. M.)

Answer—I know of none that is practical. It is chiefly by inhalation of dust from scraping or sandpapering old paint, that painters get chronic lead poisoning. Secondly by carelessness about washing hands before eating or chewing or smoking.

HURRICANE HOUSE

By Bruce Henry

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

It is a peculiarity of the true Miamian that he rarely concedes the existence of a hurricane until it roars, as it were, at his doorstep. Morinda Eggleston, having lived in south Florida at intervals for ten years, was an exception, and she still vividly recalled the horrors of September, 1926, when the city was buffeted for 12 hours by winds that reached 200 miles an hour, killing some 500 dazed unfortunates. April, having heard again and again her aunt's recounting of that storm, shared with Morinda a wholesome respect for a tropical howler, and since she herself had watched with frozen terror the rampages of a "Yankee" hurricane which, contrary to all rules, swept down from the north in November, and had sadly watched the smoking funeral pyres of hundreds of men killed in the Matecumbe storm, knew from first-hand acquaintance the folly of scoffing at the slightest warning sign.

Thus, when her aunt appeared with the newspaper and excitedly said, "Hurricane!" April took the paper from her hand and studied the advisory issued by the weather bureau.

Too, the interruption gave her an excuse to ignore Bob's angry raving, and provided an opportunity to let his accusation of Gil, Ronnie and Dr. Woodrow sink in.

The advisory read: "Tropical disturbance central 9, a. m., E. S. T., about 200 miles south, southeast of Turks islands, moving north northwest about 12 miles an hour. Evidences of increasing intensity with strong shifting winds over wide area and winds of gale force near center. Caution advised small boats in path."

"April," Bob snapped, "will you stop mooning over that paper and pay some attention to us? A storm warning doesn't mean anything this time of year. Besides, don't you realize that right now you are being robbed of millions and millions of dollars by three of the slickest crooks on earth?"

She all but laughed in his face. "You're completely mad, Robert. Mr. Tennington, can't you reason with him? Ronnie Alter, Gilbert and Dr. Woodrow are three fine men who have been of great service to me. They are certainly not crooks. If they want on the 'glades expedition alone, they had good reasons for doing so."

The lawyer shook his head. "Their behavior is open to criticism, my dear. You know, men do strange things when the lust for wealth is in them."

April appealed to her aunt with her eyes, and Morinda Eggleston took the hint characteristically. "Speaking of doing strange things," she snorted, "nose high, 'isn't it rather unusual for two gentlemen to invade a lady's bedroom without ceremony? Get out, both of you! I've never had to put up with this sort of thing before, and I'm certainly not . . ."

Bob, ignoring her, spoke to April. "Will you will you not sign this power of attorney?"

"She will not," Morinda answered promptly.

"No, Bob, I won't," April agreed. "When you've gotten over this childish notion of yours that Gil and the others are 'robbing me, then you may come back and we'll talk things over quietly."

Morrison glared down at her. "I think you're still in love with that person Ferris," he blurted, then turned on his heel and with a gesture of acquiescence the folly of Tennington to follow. stalked from the room.

"Your future husband," observed Morinda Eggleston, "has a temper, my child. Take it out of him early."

"I can't understand it," April exclaimed. "He never acted that way before. He's letting his solicitude for me run away with his judgment."

"H'm."

"What does that mean?"

"Just h'm, that's all."

The rest of the morning April fretted. Bob had been quite successful in one way; he had sown a seed of suspicion in her mind. It was odd, when one thought of it, that they should go on the hunt for the helium without Bob. Could it be the thought of so much potential wealth had been too much for their sense of honesty?

No, that was impossible—the very thought was disloyal. Certainly Ronnie, himself well fixed, Dr. Woodrow, distinguished scientist, and Gil, who had sacrificed much to aid her, were above such temptation.

Then she recalled Bob's vicious howl that the hurricane would blow the three "to kingdom come" and grew fearful. How long did they intend staying down in that forsaken fastness, where white men rarely go? When had they left, and how far was the Big Cypress region where Deep lake was located?

An afternoon edition of the paper conveyed the news that the "disturbance" was curving slowly in the direction of the Florida peninsula and picking up great circular speed as it moved.

In general, she saw, the town was paying little attention to the warning. Too often had shopkeepers and home owners been fooled into putting up storm shutters, anchoring trees, taking down signs and making other necessary preparations, only to have the impending storm move south to the gulf or swing up through the middle Atlantic region. Besides, it was too early for hurricanes.

But April was of different mind, and when a glance at a barometer revealed a drop—though slight—she lost no time ordering her aunt's car and chauffeur for a quick trip to Hurricane House. There, she knew, she would find Fortuna. And while she loathed the woman with all her heart, from her she might be able to learn when Gil, Ronnie and Dr. Woodrow planned to return. While she was waiting for the car, she phoned Sally Trent at the newspaper office.

"We don't know much about the storm, yet," Sally admitted. "It's probably a false alarm. Tell you what I'll do, though, I'll give you a buzz as soon as anything new comes in. What's your number?"

"You can reach me at . . . at Hurricane House," April replied, biting her lips.

"So? What's going on in that den of iniquity and destruction?" April told her briefly of her worry for the safety of the three men.

"Golly, that's an angle. They'd never come out alive if the storm should hit while they were in the 'glades," Sally paused. "Listen, you stay at Hurricane House until I get there later. Maybe we can figure a way to get word to them in the Big Cypress. This rag has a rickety photographic plane we might use. Drop 'em a message. It would make a swell yarn."

April agreed to wait, glad of an ally.

It took all her innate good breeding to be civil to Fortuna when a maid ushered her into the patio at Hurricane House, thence to the library where she found the woman lolling in a chaise-longue with the air of one who is mistress of the house and proud of it.

Fortuna, on the other hand, was effusively gracious, as though to imply, "I have nothing to fear from you any more, my fine girl, so I don't mind being mean."

She was, April grudgingly admitted, a striking handsome creature as she lay there in a rich, flowing robe, her glorious hair descending in waves across her shoulders. Yet April felt that Fortuna was living a lie, pretending to be something she never had been, enjoying luxuries of this home without proper right.

"Cocktail!" Fortuna asked languidly, and when April declined, purred, "So nice of you to come."

"I'm worried about Mr. Alter, Dr. Woodrow and Gil," April confessed, launching immediately into the reason of her visit. "Did they tell you when they expected to return? There's a storm driving this way and . . ."

"My dear," Fortuna yawned. "I haven't a word of news. I wish they antics the last few days they have been acting so excited or secretive, and I care less."

April compressed her lips. "But surely," she suggested, acidly, "I told you when he would return."

Fortuna smiled. "He probably did. I don't recall. I don't need to worry about Gilbert. He is always around when I need him."

Liar, April thought viciously. But you can't make me angry. I won't give you that satisfaction.

"Then I may be getting along," she said, rising. "Oh, don't go," the other woman protested, sitting up. "You know, we never had a real opportunity to talk, before. In fact," she tapped a cigarette delicately on one immaculate fingertip, "there are quite a few questions I would like to ask you." She paused, looked straight at April, "I presume you were my husband's fiancée, or so considered yourself, not knowing of our marriage."

25-Yard Field Goal Gives Alabama 9-7 Win Over Vanderbilt

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 25.—When they called Sandy Sanford into the game and announced the angle was bad for a kick, everyone in the room said, "He won't make it. It isn't in the cards."

But he did. And we all stood and lifted figurative hats to the Alabama boy who kicked the field goal to give his team a victory and keep the Crimson Tide the nation's only undefeated and untied major team.

Don't tell me this Alabama team isn't a great team. It may not have the greatest material, the greatest backs, the greatest passing attack or the greatest running game, but it won its football games when the pressure was on. And if it won them with duller weapons than some teams have got, then all the more credit to the Crimson Tide. That is a test of greatness beyond the mere test of speed and skill.

You'll look far and find no team that has pulled out three games in a row, beating Tulane in the last two minutes, Georgia Tech in the last four minutes and Vanderbilt in the last seven minutes.

Frank Thomas has done his best coaching job, the best in a long career of fine coaching.

And, if you think truth isn't stranger and more impossible than fiction, have a look at Sandy Sanford.

It was the first time in my life I've heard a football game over radio. I heard it at the home of a friend in Great Neck, N. Y. It lacks most of the things the actual game has. The Alabama people present were ready to hang the announcer for what sounded like highly partisan announcing for Vanderbilt, but when Sanford kicked the goal they forgave even the announcer.

There will be, I guess, lots of arguments about the qualities of this Alabama team.

Just remember this one thing. No fair team, no poor team, ever comes through undefeated. It requires a great football team to put an undefeated season right behind one of the year before. And to make the second one an undefeated and untied season. There was some luck mixed up in the scheme of things. But luck was just a bit of it.

All year, in every contest, when they reached the stretch, Alabama had it. Their opponents didn't. That's the real story.

PRO FOOTBALL PROGRESSES.

Some 30,000 turkey-stuffed followers crowded Ebbets field over in Brooklyn this afternoon to see the Giants and Dodgers play football. Last Sunday at the Polo Grounds 45,000 saw the pro game of that day.

How many years has it been since Red Grange turned professional, or square, as some of the boys insisted, and went into the pro game? Not many as years go. The game was just in its cradle then and no one cared much about seeing it. They went to the game when Grange was in it just to see the Grange. But now, well things have changed.

Professional football still is in its infancy. It's just getting a start. The cold facts are that few teams outside New York and the metropolitan area are making money. But the cold facts also are that many cities—Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati, Detroit, and others—are getting used to the pro game and liking it. It wasn't so many years ago that a crowd of 20,000 at a major league baseball game was considered a huge turnout. Now we draw that many to an occasional game in the Southern league.

That pro football crowd of 45,000 last Sunday and another of 30,000 today is significant. In the beginning, after Grange

TENNESSEE NIPS KENTUCKY, 13-0, IN 32D CONTEST

Wildcats Threaten Several Times, But Unable To Score.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 25.—(UP)—The old beer keg was headed back to Knoxville tonight following the Tennessee Volunteers' 13 to 0 football victory over the Kentucky Wildcats at Stoll field.

The battered barrel—only stakes in the battle between Southeastern conference second-flight teams—will be kept by Tennessee until next Thanksgiving Day.

Bob Davis, of Kentucky, was hailed as a hero even though he fought for a losing cause. He was Kentucky's only scoring threat and he bothered Tennessee's defense from the start of the game until he had to withdraw through exhaustion midway of the fourth period.

Tennessee scored in the second quarter just after the Wildcats had held for downs on their one-inch line. Davis' punt had fallen short and on the following play, Tennessee's bounding George Cafego faked a punt and raced around right end for 25 yards and a touchdown.

Kentucky roared right back but fell short of scoring when McCubbin stepped out of bounds on the one-foot line after taking a fourth-down pass from Davis.

A pass intercepted by Wood, of Tennessee, set up the second Vol score in the third period. Little scored on a "flea-flicker" play that consisted of a pass from Wood to Eldred, who heaved the ball over his shoulder to Little. It was a 15-yard scoring play.

OLE MISS BEATS STATE TEAM, 9-7

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Mississippi State, playing without a regular coach, upset University of Mississippi, 9 to 7, in the annual gridiron battle between the two schools today.

State, aided considerably by the excellent punting of Quarterback Bob Hardison, took the lead in the first quarter when Carter tackled Parker Hill behind Ole Miss' goal for a safety.

A sustained 70-yard drive in the second period netted State a touchdown. Captain Steadman, fullback, scored with a 1-foot plunge through center. Ward's 28-yard pass to Turner had placed the ball on the 4. Ward kicked goal.

Ray Hapes, veteran Ole Miss halfback, almost stole the show in the fourth period with a sparkling 75-yard touchdown run, behind beautiful blocking. Kinard added the extra point.

With five minutes left to play, Ole Miss started a running and passing attack that carried to State's 11, where Hardison intercepted a pass. Passes took the losers to the State 24 a short time later. A field goal try by Massengale was no good and the threat ended.

State made 13 first downs to 11 for Ole Miss and gained 283 yards to 220 for the Rebels.

Eighteen thousand saw the game.

DODGERS, GIANTS BATTLE TO DRAW

BROOKLYN, Nov. 25.—(UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers came bounding back from a poor season to hang a 13-to-13 tie on the New York Giants today in a thrills-packed football game before a holiday crowd of 27,000 at Ebbets field.

Sparked by the passing of Ace Parker and the placekicking of the veteran Ralph Kercheval, the Dodgers rallied after the Giants had scored a touchdown on their second play to stay in the ball game to the end.

Kercheval kicked two field goals and Tillie Manton drove two through the uprights. There were long passes and brilliant runs galore.

Chick Aldridge Star In Tornado Victory

Georgia Tech's cross-country runners led by Chick Aldridge, who set a new Southeastern conference record, were winners in a three-cornered meet with Mississippi State, who placed second, and Georgia, third-place winners. The Jackets won three firsts with Aldridge followed by Manton and Small. Other places are as follows: Ellis, Miss. State; Fredrickson, Georgia; Fambrough, Georgia Tech; Ray, Miss. State; Conley, Georgia Tech, and Rulenberg, Miss. State.

Clemson Is Held To Scoreless Tie

GREENVILLE, S. C., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Brilliant punting by Captain June Scott enabled the Furman Hurricane to hold the powerful Clemson football team to a scoreless tie today.

The Tigers piled up an overwhelming lead in yardage and first downs but lacked a scoring punch when they were within striking distance of the Hurricane goal on two occasions.

KANSAS IS TIED BY MISSOURI, 0-0

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Kansas, which surprised the Big Six football conference with victories, and Missouri, which surprised it with defeats, fought to a scoreless tie here today after the Tigers had missed a last-minute victory by 12 inches. Twenty-two thousand homecoming fans, sensing drama and wanting it after three quarters in which tackling was so hard that fumbles were frequent, rose as Fullback Stanley Mondala took the ball on fourth down at the Kansas one-yard line.

The 192-pound back threw himself at a mounting pile of Jay-hawkers but when that mass was unscrambled there was the ball a foot short of the goal line.

Earlier Mondala had been rushed into the game to kick from the 15-yard line. His attempt failed.

The closest Kansas ever got to Missouri's goal line was on the first play of the game when Halfback James Christenson fumbled the kickoff on his own 27 and Ward covered the ball there. But Replegie got only a yard before he tried a pass and William Bailey intercepted it.

SANDY SANFORD AGAIN AIDS TIDE WITH GREAT KICK

Substitute Who Beat Tulane With Field Goal Is Hero.

By JACK TROY.

DUDLEY FIELD, NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 25.—Alabama's last-minute men rode the crest of southern football again today.

Vanderbilt's valiant Commodores, surging from behind in the third quarter to take the lead, finally were engulfed by the Crimson Tide's unerring placekicker, Sandy Sanford, whose 25-yard field goal with only six minutes left to play, brought a spectacular 9-to-7 victory.

Today's victory, achieved by dogged fight but actually born of a Vanderbilt hidden ball trick that failed, gave Alabama its first Southern conference championship since 1934.

It was the seventh conference title Alabama has won. Alabama has now gone undefeated in 18 games. There was a tie last year against Tennessee. But there have been no defeats in the last two seasons of play.

There were 21,650 spectators sitting tense as Sandy Sanford raced into the game after Alabama had once again marched deep into Vanderbilt territory.

Vandy had put up three sensational goal-line stands and just prior to Sanford's entrance had stopped a 75-yard Alabama advance.

It was a dramatic moment. Sanford tossed off his hood and stood back on the 25 to try an angle placement.

The line of scrimmage was the 14. Sanford stood 11 yards farther back. Herky Moseley held the ball.

Sanford, who won the Tulane game in just such a fashion, was unhurried. His foot swung and the ball curved right through the middle to beat Vanderbilt.

Sanford, Adona, Ark. Boy had come into the game once previously. He replaced Shoemaker at end after Vic Bradford had "stolen" the ball out of the mass when Vandy tried to work the hidden ball stunt.

There was a minute left to play in the first half. Bradford had given Alabama the ball at the Vandy 44. Kilgore ran 12 yards and Holm put the ball on the 31 as Sanford raced in.

ONLY A MASK. It developed that this was only a mask. For Kilgore immediately threw a long pass to Tut Warren.

Tech Freshmen Win, 20-12; Blount Runs 100 Yards for Score

BARTLETT HERO OF TECH'S FROSH, SCORES 3 TIMES

Georgia Bullpups Outclassed by Baby Jackets; 13,000 See Game.

By ROY WHITE.
Joe Bartlett, an Asheville, N. C., boy, ran wild to give Georgia Tech Freshmen a 20-to-12 victory over the University of Georgia Bullpups Thursday afternoon at Grant field, before more than 13,000 spectators. It was the fifth annual charity game, the proceeds going to the Scottish Rite hospital. The Baby Jackets now trail by one game.

Although the Jackets ran wild in midfield and near the goals, it was Blount, of Brunswick, Ga., who supplied the sensational run of the game. Late in the fourth quarter and trailing 20 to 6, Blount took Cahill's pass on the Georgia goal line and behind perfect interference, ran 100 yards to a touchdown. It was the most sensational run of the year on Grant field.

SCORES ALL THREE.

Bartlett scored all three Tech touchdowns. His first came early in the second quarter on a 9-yard sprint. He came back a few minutes later with a short gain around end and the Jackets led, 12 to 6. At the half, after a 9-yard pass, Earl Hise to C. D. Slater, gave the Bullpups a touchdown early in the game.

The Asheville boy came charging around Georgia's left end again in the third quarter for the final touchdown, after he had passed 18 yards to Kelly on the Georgia 1-yard line. The pass was over the goal but officials ruled it complete on interference and gave Tech the ball on the 1-yard stripe.

Midway in the fourth quarter after Tech had punted to Georgia's 15-yard line and rushed the Bullpups back on their own 7-yard line, B. Kelly tackled Hise behind the goal as he was attempting to pass, for a safety and two more points for Tech.

Spectators saw one of the greatest punting duels ever staged on Grant field. Punting on both sides averaged close to 50 yards. Both teams kicked once when only a short one was necessary, which brought the average down considerably.

GOOD KICKING.

Charles Selby, of Knoxville, Tenn., kicked for the Bullpups and Neal Cavett, of Memphis; Joe Bartlett, of Asheville, and Roy Goree, of Atlanta, kept up the good average for the Jackets. It was a real punting duel and future Tech and Georgia teams need not worry any more about short punts, at least for three years.

Tech was superior to Georgia in every respect except the punting, which was equal. Tech gained 18 first downs against only four, one on a penalty, for Georgia.

The Bullpups were never past midfield of their own power except early in the first quarter, when they scored. Joe Reed took a Tech fumble on the Jackets' 8-yard line and on fourth down, Hise

First Touchdown in Freshman Game at Grant Field

C. D. Slater, former Marist boy, No. 29, caught Earl Hise's nine-yard pass and took a couple of steps just to be sure for Georgia's first touchdown in the Freshman game at Grant field Thursday. Slater was over the line when he caught the pass and it was Georgia's only time in Tech territory under their own power.

when a forward passing attack was grounded. The Jackets had a majority of their reserve squad in the lineup when Georgia scored its last touchdown and two of its three earned first downs.

The last quarter of the game was played under the lights. Georgia's 10-yard line three other times, but was held for downs.

In addition to driving to three touchdowns, Tech was within Georgia's 10-yard line three other times, but was held for downs.

who was hit at the goal line by Housman. However, Warren fumbled the ball over the goal line and there was no doubt about it being a touchdown.

Kilgore's attempt to kick extra point was wide. There was only time left for the kickoff.

There wasn't any question about Sanford's mission the second time he entered the Alabama lineup. Vanderbilt had stopped everything else and was fighting desperately to hold that one-point lead.

It wasn't quite as long a kick as Sanford was called upon to execute in the last minute of the Tulane game. But the angle probably was more severe.

That made no difference to Sanford. He has kicked five times for Alabama this year. He has made all five kicks—three were for extra point—good.

They say of Frank Thomas that he is a genius at winning ball games from the bench. And it seems that he is.

STARTS MARCH.

Vanderbilt started marching for the first time early in the third quarter when Coach Morrison sent Bert Marshall, the diminutive Texas star, into the game.

Held off by booming kicks and the berserk rushes of Joe Kilgore and George Zivich, Marshall's appearance changed everything.

Vanderbilt's offensive flowered. The drive started at the Alabama 47. Marshall broke away and on a dancing, driving run darted to the 32. Then he passed down the middle 15 yards to Ray Andrus.

The fleet and dashing Marshall cut loose again: He was run out of bounds on the Alabama 9. Andrus punched the middle for a first down at the 7.

Then it was Marshall again. The mighty mite ploughed into the line and was knocked down one foot short of a touchdown. Only one more play was needed. Housman rammed the middle again and went over.

In the pinch, Coach Morrison rushed the veteran Joe Agee into the game to try for the extra point. It was good—and the crowd and the Vanderbilt players went wild.

It looked like a victory for Vandy—and especially was this true after 'Bama's third long march had been stopped.

Marshall uncorked a kick that seemed to mean the end of Alabama's hopes. It was a 53-yard kick that bounced awkwardly away from Kilgore and was downed on the Alabama 22.

Only a team of championship caliber could overcome something like that. Here's what happened:

Kilgore gained 7 at the line. Fresh men, Machoff and Foshee, replaced Cox and Captain Monksy for Alabama. Herky Moseley relieved Zivich.

Holm slashed to a first down at the Alabama 33. Then Moseley passed to Kilgore, who juggled the ball, but held it, and ran 31 yards to the Vandy 37. Moseley passed it to Vic Bradford for a gain of 18 yards and a first down at the 19.

Vandy couldn't stop the passes or the rushes. But when Holm got 5 more and the ball was at the 14, the Commodores cleared the decks for action.

They were prepared to make their fourth goal line stand. Holm was stopped and, while Moseley passed to Kilgore, Andrus tackled him for no gain.

READY FOR ACT.

So it was fourth down. Vandy seemingly had the Tide bottled up. Then Sanford entered the picture. Warren, who had beaten Tech, did his part earlier. Sanford, who had nipped Tulane, was ready to try a repeat performance against Vandy.

It was a $50,000 kick. At least that much rode with it. For the unbeaten and untied Alabama team now is in a position to go to the Rose Bowl, if invited, or if not, certainly will represent the south in the Sugar Bowl.

Alabama had just one chance. A tough chance, to boot. Alabama lined up right. There were, of a certainty, seven men on the line this time and Sanford's cool exhibition under fire and with so much at stake certainly will remain long in the memories of the 21,000 spectators who sat so intently waiting for the final try.

Talk persists that Alabama may yet be invited to play against California in the Rose Bowl. Alabama, however, may favor the Sugar Bowl.

There remain only two unbeaten, untied teams in the entire country, Alabama and Santa Clara are these teams.

California has, of course, been tied.

Twice in the first half and twice in the second half, Vanderbilt choked off scoring threats. But when the chips were down, Alabama again rode the crest. As said, only a championship club could have done it.

The figures were predominantly in favor of Alabama, although Vandy outgained Alabama, 76 to 57 yards, in rushing for the first half.

However, for the game Alabama made 17 first downs to Vandy's 6. Alabama made 200 yards rushing to 136 by Vandy. Alabama gained 91 yards on passes and 36 yards by Vanderbilt.

In total yardage, Alabama had 387 to 275.

The superior team won. Sheer fight by the Commodores was a saving factor for most of the game, but in the pinch Alabama had what it takes to win.

VANDY MISTAKE.

Vandy made mistakes that might have been costly had it not been for such a determined fighting spirit. Ford passed from on his goal line in the first period.

Zivich intercepted at the 17. It took fight to ward off Alabama. Other long marches, of course, were stopped.

Charley Holm, Kilgore and Zivich were leading Alabama backfield stars. Jim Ryba was a standout in the line.

For Vandy, Marshall, Housman, Andrus and Huggins were outstanding backfield performers, while McElreath, Captain Hinkle and Ed Merlin were great in the line. Franklin, on the other end from McElreath, also stood out.

The Tide gained many yards on a mouse-trap play today. But the seven strong men composing the Vanderbilt line refused to be tricked or penetrated when the goal line was endangered.

It took two great plays to win. And that Alabama was able to come up with them when all else had failed is proof enough of the caliber of the Crimson Tide, the winner and new Southeastern conference champion.

PAIR, PLASTER LEAD SMITHIES TO 21-7 VICTORY

Tech High Breaks 7-7 Tie in 4th Period To Down Wilson.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Nov. 25.—Powerful Tech High, of Atlanta, cracked a 7-7 deadlock in the fourth quarter to defeat Woodrow Wilson High school 21 to 7 in a bitterly fought intersectional game before a colorful crowd of 5,500 at Sewanee stadium here this afternoon.

It was Wilson's first intersectional loss in three years. The Presidents were unable to halt the sensational dashes of Bobby Pair and Ralph Plaster. Pair scored two touchdowns and Plaster the other. They worked behind a powerful line, led by Captain Jamie Timberlake, husky end.

Wilson scored the first touchdown in the opening period and the undaunted Smithies came back to score a few minutes later. Tech seemed to get stronger as the game progressed and the high-powered machine of the Smithies struck on all cylinders in the final period.

A few minutes after the fourth period started Joe Massey kicked out of danger to Tech's 37. On the first down Plaster went around his left end, cut back and sprinted 63 yards for a touchdown in the longest run of the

Tech, Georgia Work on Pass Defense; Line Battle Expected

BULLDOGS PLAN TRICKY ATTACK; LUMPKIN BETTER

Hartman Punts Well; Otis Maffett's Injury Improved.

By FELTON GORDON.
ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 25.—The University of Georgia football squad held an early drill today and then called quits for their Thanksgiving Day feast.

The workout was devoted chiefly to pass defense. Coach Mehre tried several combinations in an effort to stop aerial heaves thrown by Red Devils emulating Tech.

SHORT WORKOUT.
A short and snappy drill on the tricks in the Bulldog strategy box followed. The session was closed with a punting exhibition in which Captain Bill Hartman got off several long ones.

In the offensive backfield Andy Roddenberry was alternating at quarterback and left halfback this afternoon. Lew Young saw full time at fullback. The same backfield has Wallace Miller at quarterback. This juggling was not believed to have significance.

The annual suspense which pervades the camp just before the Tech game is in full force. The attitude of the squad is excellent and is entirely void of over-confidence.

IMPROVEMENT NOTED.
Considerable improvement has been noted this week in the injuries of Otis Maffett and Quinton Lumpkin. Lumpkin was playing first string. Bandages were removed from his left knee after the workout.

Although the starting lineup is still in doubt it probably will be as follows: Marvin Gillespie and Otis Maffett, ends; "Stogie" Davis and Tommy Haygood, tackles; Pete Tinsley and Walter Troutman, guards; Quinton Lumpkin, center; Bill Hartman, quarterback; Oliver Hunnicutt and Jim Cavan, halfbacks, and Jimmy Fordham, fullback.

The squad will leave Athens by bus early Friday night after a practice.

CORNELL DOWNS QUAKERS, 34-20

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—(UP)—A barrel of touchdown dynamite exploded on Franklin field today as the big red football team of Cornell turned back an inspired Pennsylvania machine by a score of 34 to 20 before 60,000 fans in the 44th meeting between the two teams.

Rose scored the first 14 points for Cornell, going over in the first period from the one-yard line and crossing Penn's goal line in the second quarter with another one-yard smash. He made good the placement attempts after both his own scores.

Freshman Teams Feted at Banquet

Members of the Tech and Georgia freshman football teams were guests of the football committee of the Scottish Rite hospital Thursday night at a banquet at the Capital City Club.

Officials of the hospital reported a new record in attendance, 13,500, and a new high of more than $10,000 for the hospital fund. The program and radio broadcasting rights helped swell the fund.

Lumpkin Will Be Ready for Yellow Jackets

One of the south's best centers, Georgia's Quinton Lumpkin, has sufficiently recovered from an ankle injury to be ready for Georgia Tech in their clash with the Bulldogs tomorrow on Grant field. Lumpkin, a big 200-pounder, was a 60-minute man in several of Georgia's earlier games but for the last two Saturdays, against Tulane and Auburn, he has been handicapped by an injured ankle and only played part of the game. Lumpkin's home is in Macon, Ga., where he prepped at Lanier High.

LAST TECH DRILL IS SLATED TODAY; TEAMS IN SHAPE

Thirteen Jackets, 15 Bulldogs Will Close Gridiron Careers.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
It will be a light, streamlined line against one of the most rugged defensive setups in the south when Georgia and Tech square off for their annual battle on Grant field Saturday.

The Jackets will pit their fast, mobile line against the big, rugged Bulldog forewall, which has held its own with such lines as Holy Cross, Tulane and Auburn.

There have been nine touchdowns scored on Georgia this season and only one of those scores have been pushed through the Bulldog line.

Holy Cross scored on a pass, South Carolina scored on a 72-yard run, Tennessee scored three touchdowns on passes, one on a long run and one over tackle, Florida tallied on a blocked punt and Tulane scored on a pass.

All of which means that this Georgia line, with Tinsley, Troutman, Davis, Lumpkin, et al. is pretty tough to crack.

SEVEN SCORES.
On the other hand, the Jackets have not done so badly themselves. Seven touchdowns have been scored against them.

Only three of them were through the line. Duke tallied twice and Auburn once over the middle. Alabama scored on a pass, two were made on end sweeps, and one on the stolen ball trick.

The Tech forewall with Wood, Rimmer, Wilcox and Chivington, also limited the powerful Alabama running attack to a scant 38 yards.

Which points to the fact that the game tomorrow may well develop into a battle of lines—and a great many football games are won by the forwards' play.

Thanksgiving morning the Jackets took their semi-final workout on Rose Bowl field.

After the warm-up exercises, Coach Alexander and his aides drilled the boys on pass defense. Backfield Coach Bobby Dodd shot passes from Georgia formations at the varsity for an hour.

CHARGING DRILL.
The linemen went through a light charging drill while the backs were practicing pass defense.

Coach Alex dismissed the boys in time for their turkey dinner and they attended the Georgia-Tech freshman game in the afternoon.

The last practice of the season is scheduled for today. Only the usual light Friday workout is in store.

Both teams are in good condition for the battle. Red Collins, "Little Tarzan" Laakey, Jack Nixon and Glenn Cushing, of the Tech injured list, will all be ready.

Reports from Athens indicate that although Quinton Lumpkin, center, and Otis Maffett, end, will not start, they will be able to play the game tomorrow will mark the close for 13 Jackets and 15 Bulldogs in Tech-Georgia competition.

CITADEL BEATS PETRELS, 7 TO 6

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 25.—(UP)—A place-kick by Kookie Robinson gave the Citadel Cadets a 7-to-6 victory over Oglethorpe University here today.

The Citadel scored with the game only a minute and 30 seconds old. Larry Southard, Cadet end, blocked a punt on Oglethorpe's 20-yard line and Hugh Rogers pounced upon the ball over the goal line.

Folkner, husky Petrel back, supplied the Oglethorpe score in the third period with a brilliant 58-yard return through the entire Blue and White team. The try for the extra point was low by inches.

Mercer Frosh Beat Baby Petrels, 12 to 0.

AMERICUS, Ga., Nov. 25.—A blocked kick in the first quarter and a pass in the fourth period gave the Mercer freshmen a 12-to-0 victory over Oglethorpe freshmen in a drizzling rain here this afternoon.

Slappey, Mercer left guard, blocked Malpass' kick on Oglethorpe's 35-yard line late in the first quarter and raced across a clear field for the first score. The try for the extra point was no good.

gave impetus to the game by bringing out people who came to see Grange and come back to see the games, promoters thought they needed college bands and cheerleaders and the like. Now they know better. People come to see the pro game because they like the sort of football the pros give them. The game is on the way up, and a great many people will tell you they don't know exactly where the college game is going. There is every indication a division must be made. There is a major league in college football and a minor one. And then a sub-minor league. Eventually there must be some sharply defined lines. Meanwhile pro football in New York is drawing huge crowds. Other cities are keeping their franchises.

SOUTHERN STYLE.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, which haven't done so well this year and which slightly are reminiscent of the Dodgers in baseball, offered a southern style team today.

Ace Parker, who played baseball for the Crackers for a spell last summer, was the new spark plug in the Dodger backfield and one of the lures that brought out a championship crowd to witness a game offering no championship aspects. He, of course, is the best back Duke ever had and one of the best the south had. Playing with him today were Jim Whatley. All Alabama's foes remember him. And also in the lineup was Ralph Kercheval, the one-time Kentucky star. Father Lumpkin and Stumpy Thomason were playing for the Dodgers before they quit the pro game.

The pay is good for the stars, but the game keeps looking for new names and the salaries are not what they used to be. They are becoming more fixed under contracts and the game is going on. It's going to be interesting 20 years from now to see where the pro game is. I hope I'm around to see. My idea is it is helping the college game. But not many people think so, especially the college people. Pro football was smarter than baseball. However, pro football doesn't try to raid the college campuses for material as does baseball. It waits until the players have left college. It creates more football fans, who will, if there is no pro game handy, attend a college game. They would not have gone had they not learned the game from seeing pro performances. Well, I hope I'm around to see, 20 years from now, what's happened to both games. College and pro.

Chattanooga Beats Mercer Bears, 19-7

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 25.—(UP)—Johnny Nardo, hard-driving fullback, led the Chattanooga Moccasins to a 19-to-7 victory over the Mercer Bears today in a Dixie conference game. Nardo scored the Moccasins' first touchdown in the initial period after alternating long runs with Scott. He added the third in the third quarter in two line drives from the 9-yard line.

Chattanooga's second touchdown came in the second period when Scott passed to Matusek from the Bear's 12-yard line.

Mercer's only score came in the second when Al Owens tossed W. Bazemore a short pass. Bazemore added the extra point.

Gamecocks Beaten By Catholic U., 27-14

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Catholic University's football team defeated University of South Carolina today, 27 to 14.

The winners scored two of their touchdowns in the first quarter, one in the second and another in the fourth. Their passing attack was potent throughout the game. South Carolina scored in the first and second periods.

STETSON WINS.

DELAND, Fla., Nov. 25.—(AP)—Stetson University's Hatters defeated Mississippi College, 14 to 6, here today in a Thanksgiving Day football game played on Stetson's home field.

Texas Aggies Down Texas University, 7-0

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 25.—(AP)—One sudden surge in the second period, engineered by Dick Todd and Dick Vitek, two nimble backs, gave the Texas Aggies a 7-0 victory over the University of Texas here today in their annual Thanksgiving Day classic.

A first-period shovel pass which Dick Todd took to the Longhorn's 14 set up the only score of the game. Three plays later Vitek carried the ball across and Todd added the extra point.

Two second period fumbles endangered the Texas goal line but the first threat failed when Aggie was stopped on the two-yard line. The half-way gun halted the other on Texas' 35.

Texas looked better in the last half and twice carried the ball far down the field but the Aggies successfully staved off both threats.

Chicago Bears Beat Detroit Lions, 13-0

DETROIT, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Two field goals and a 45-yard touchdown dash with an intercepted pass gave the Chicago Bears, western division leaders of the National Professional Football League, a 13-to-0 victory over the Detroit Lions before a capacity crowd of 25,000 here today.

The triumph left the Bears needing one more victory or a tie to clinch the championship. They play the Cleveland Rams Sunday and end their schedule against the Chicago Cardinals a week from Sunday.

DECATUR HOLDS TYPISTS TO TIE IN BIG UPSET, 0-0

N. G. I. C. Crown Goes to Griffin's Two Unbeaten Teams.

Decatur sprang one of the major upsets of the prep football season and held Commercial to a scoreless tie Thursday morning on the Decatur field. The tie game between the 1936 N. G. I. C. champions, gave the 1937 title to Griffin's two unbeaten and untied teams, Griffin High and Spalding High.

Commercial outgained Decatur seven first downs to four and lost two fine scoring opportunities. Early in the game a forward lateral, Spratling to Casteel to Mayfield netted 51 yards, but the Red Raiders could not gain that final 10 yards in four downs.

Late in the game, Commercial returned a Decatur punt to the Decatur 13-yard line and again the Decatur line held like a stone wall and turned back the threat.

Decatur had only one scoring opportunity when Kennerly passed to Beggs in the clear, but the fleet-footed Spratling caught

CHAUTEMPS DEFIES REDS IN STRUGGLE OVER PAY DEMANDS

Grave Ministerial Crisis Matching One That Ousted Blum Is Feared.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(UP)—Premier Camille Chautemps, battling in the chamber of deputies against the salary demands of thousands of government workers, tonight defied the Communists to overthrow his five-month-old government and risk a national financial panic.

When the chamber convened shortly before midnight, after day-long consultations among Leftist groups, there was grave danger of a ministerial crisis matching the one of last June which drove Premier Leon Blum from office.

Government workers demanded with support of 72 Communists members of the chamber, annual salary increases amounting to $61,200,000 while the popular front government has offered a compromise whereby they would receive $57,800,000.

The deadlock, as it affects the employees of such government controlled services as telegraph and telephone communications and railroads, represents a $5.10 wage increase under their demands as against $3.40 offered by Radical-Socialist Premier Chautemps.

At 10:30 p.m. the chamber finance committee approved the government's offer by a vote of 26 to 0 with 17 Communists and Rightist not voting, indicating the fight at hand on the chamber floor. The Radical-Socialist and Socialists—backbone of Chautemps government—voted solidly for the bill.

Roosevelt's Popularity Still Holds, Survey of Public Opinion Shows

Last November Voters Gave Chief Executive 62.5 Per Cent of Ballots; Today's Poll Reveals F. D. R. Has 62.8 Per Cent Despite Recent Market Crash.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Back in October, 1929, the New York stock market collapsed and values jolted downward in the greatest crash in history. At the following presidential election the Democrats rode into Washington.

This year another severe October crash wiped out billions of dollars in paper values. Mindful of how the stock market debacle of 1929 turned sentiment against Hoover, observers are speculating on a political riddle:

"Has the slump weakened Roosevelt?"

Today the results of a continuous week-by-week survey, conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, give an answer to that question for the first time.

In spite of falling business barometers, the personal popularity of the President is still at a high level. It is not so high as Institute ballots showed it to be last month. The vote in today's survey may be the beginning of a reaction based on the business recession.

Crucial Point Reached.
Nevertheless, at this crucial point in his second term, the Institute finds Roosevelt's following just as great as it was on election day last November.

Last November the voters gave Franklin Roosevelt 62.5 per cent of the major party vote. Today, representative voters in the Institute of Public Opinion survey divide as follows:

For Roosevelt 62.8%
Against Roosevelt 37.2%

This does not mean that President Roosevelt's popularity has marched on—month by month—at the same level. There have been sharp dips and recoveries. In the long-drawn battle over the supreme court, for instance, the President lost strength for several months. After the court compromise of last August, however, Roosevelt's line turned upward again on Institute charts.

Roosevelt is actually more popular today than he was at the end of the court fight, according to the Institute index. Seemingly, the nationwide dispute over Justice Black has not reacted against the President.

Picture As of Today.
As far as the President's personal popularity is concerned, here is the picture the Institute survey gives today:

1. Roosevelt holds good-sized leads in every section of the United States. In the states along the Atlantic seaboard and in the mid-west farm belt, his personal popularity is greater than it was on election day, 1936.

In the south and far west his strength is approximately the same as a year ago. His only losses appear in the Great Lakes area (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan) and in the Rocky Mountain states, where he is from 1 to 5 points lower than he was 12 months ago.

Strongest in Large Cities.
2. The President is stronger in the big cities than in the small towns, though he is nevertheless more popular in the towns than with farm voters.

3. Persons on relief are overwhelmingly (85 per cent) for Roosevelt. Persons in the "lower third" average 3 to 1 for him. His majority declines in magnitude at each higher income level. In spite of his powerful prestige President Roosevelt is on the defensive as Congress convenes for the first of two sessions before next November. The mid-term election will be, as always, a sharp test for the incumbent administration. Meanwhile, Congress is faced with a difficult legislative program, and the whole picture is clouded with signs of business gloom.

Last summer the Republicans beat Roosevelt in the supreme court fight, but even the court fight did not permanently damage Roosevelt with the average voter. Would a prolonged business slump shake the average man's confidence? If so, how far would a slump have to go before the President's popularity would be seriously affected?

Surveys Under Way.
These are important questions marks as 1938 brings around the beginning of a new national election campaign. The Institute is now conducting surveys to discover (1) whether the Democratic party is as popular as the President, and (2) whether public opinion holds the administration responsible for the business recession in the United States today.

The general public does not expect the slump will be severe. Institute surveys reported two weeks ago in The Constitution, makes this clear. Voters overwhelmingly believe that the stock market decline is not a signal of a new depression, and they expect that the next six months will bring better conditions for employment and business.

'PRINCESS GEORGIA' FLIES TO CARNIVAL

Miss Maibelle Dickey, Georgia's official representative in the annual All-Southern pre-Christmas carnival held this week end in Birmingham, flew to the Alabama city yesterday morning.

Miss Dickey was appointed "Princess Georgia" by Governor Rivers. The Birmingham festival is sponsored by the city commission and the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce.

HEADS MARSHALED IN RAIL RATE FIGHT

I. C. C. Opens Hearing Monday on Road's Request for Boost.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—The ailing railroad industry marshaled some of its best known leaders today for a fight for higher income.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will start a hearing Monday on the roads' request for a 15 per cent freight rate increase and a half-cent boost in passenger coach fares on eastern lines. These would produce an estimated $508,000,000 in new revenue annually.

Felley First Witness.
President J. J. Felley, of the Association of American Railroads, is to be the first witness. Others will include Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio; M. W. Clements, president of the Pennsylvania; F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central, and Hale Holden, chairman of the Southern Pacific.

The Association of American Railroads said the industry needs greater revenue to meet increased prices and rising costs of operation.

The witness, it said, will submit to the I. C. C. evidence to bear out that contention. Eastern district railroads are asking an increase in passenger coach fares from 2 cents, one-way, and round trip, to 2 1/2 cents. Southern and western lines recently raised some of their rates and already are making other upward revisions.

15 Per Cent Boost.
The 15 per cent freight rate increase would apply to all except five commodities for which certain maximum increases were asked. These commodities and increases requested:

Bituminous coal and coke, 15 cents per net ton except that in cases where a 15-cent increase was granted recently the maximum would be 10 cents; anthracite coal, 25 cents per net ton; lumber, 6 cents per hundred pounds; sugar, 15 per cent applied to the rates becoming effective December 15, but with a 6-cent per hundred pounds maximum; fruits and vegetables, 15 cents per hundred pounds.

JAPANESE 90 MILES SOUTH OF NANKING

Mobs in Shanghai Battle for Rice as Americans Observe Holiday.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 26.—(Friday) (AP)—A flying column of Japanese today crossed to the western shore of Lake Tai in a make-shift fleet of junks and sampans in a bold attempt to cut the strategic motor road between Changning and Ning.

A Japanese spokesman said they had landed about 90 miles south-east of Nanking, and would occupy Changning within a few hours. Chinese claimed only a thousand Japanese had made the landing in the face of resistance and were being surrounded.

Japanese also reported that detachments were advancing from fallen Wusih, strong point in the line guarding Nanking, toward Wusih 20 miles beyond, which is said to be in flames.

Chinese declared Japanese troops had been repulsed so often in their assaults on the Kiangyin forts, which block passage up the Yangtze, that the Japanese planned to land on the north bank of the river. From their new position, the Chinese said, the Japanese would attempt to attack the forts from up the river.

In its drive along the Shanghai-Nanking railroad the Japanese army had advanced nearly halfway to Nanking.

While the Shanghai American colony ate its Thanksgiving dinner, mobs of hungry, war-stricken Chinese stormed rice shops for food. The fixed-bayonets of the Shanghai volunteer corps guarded a cargo of rice being unloaded from a British ship.

The city's 2,000,000 Chinese refugees were in a critical state with the advent of cold weather. Only scanty food supplies trickled into the city. Municipal authorities reported but three days' food stocks on hand.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO MEET TOMORROW
Papers relating the history of gas and electric service in Atlanta and the record of the Woman's Press Club of Georgia, will be read before a meeting of the Atlanta Historical Society at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Biltmore hotel.

Mrs. Errol B. Hay Jr. will discuss the Woman's Press Club, organized in 1890, while Wade H. Wright will read a paper on utility development.

Challenged Lawyer Cleared of 'Rascality'
MACON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Defense Attorney William West told a jury Solicitor General Charles Garrett was unfair to his client by presenting certain evidence during the trial.

Solicitor Garrett replied in his argument that if the jury agreed with West they should convict him (Garrett) of rascality and free West's client, who was accused of driving an automobile without the owner's consent.

Popularity of Roosevelt Today

The following tables compare President Roosevelt's share of the major party vote in the presidential election of 1936 with his strength in today's nation-wide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion, 12 months later:

SUBSTITUTE ASKED FOR PAY-HOUR BILL

Republican Offers Labor Standard Measure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—(AP)—Representative Fred A. Hartley Jr., Kearny, N. J., Republican, proposed today a fair labor standards bill as a substitute for the administration wage-hours measure.

Hartley, a member of the labor committee, said his measure, drafted after conferences with representatives of labor, agriculture, industry and trade associations, was based on the principles of the act prohibiting prison-made goods in interstate commerce.

The bill would provide that all states which set up fair labor standards by laws specifying minimum wages and maximum hours, be protected by the federal government against invasion of goods from states not having comparable labor standards.

It would exempt agricultural and domestic labor, but leave determination of labor standards for all other workers to the discretion of the states.

GOLF CLUB BLAZE CAUSE IS MYSTERY

$15,000 Damage Reported; Apartment Fire Laid to Short Circuit.

Cause of the fire which destroyed the $15,000 clubhouse of the Forrest Hills Golf Club, near Avondale, early yesterday morning was still undetermined last night, Forrest Hill, retired owner of the golf club, said.

A blaze which razed a two-story apartment house at 464 Boulevard, N. E., at about the same time was said to have been caused by a short circuit in an electric refrigerator.

Watchman Escaped.
The fire which burned the clubhouse to the ground, leaving only the chimney standing, was believed to have started either in the boiler room or the kitchen. Gordon Jones, night watchman, who was sleeping in the basement, narrowly escaped serious injury as the flames blocked two attempted escapes from the burning building.

Between two and three hundred new golf clubs just received Tuesday by James R. (Kid) Brown, club professional, were on display in a downstairs display room and were completely destroyed.

60 Bags Lost.
Sixty bags of clubs belonging to members were also burned. Loss of Brown's new clubs combined with the members' equipment amounted to a total loss of at least $2,500, it was said.

One member was lamenting the loss of a new bag which he had just purchased for $40 and equipped with an entire new set of clubs.

The burned equipment was stored in locker rooms and the golf professional's shop. The building also includes a ballroom and a kitchen, adjoining the professional's shop. The building was erected in 1924.

The fire at the apartment house started in the basement and spread quickly to other sections of the building, firemen reported. A total of 68 runs was made by the fire department during the 24-hour period ending at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, the largest number this year, Fire Marshal Harry Phillips said.
